

Teamsters' Strike Ends

5-Year Pact Gains Unanimous Approval; Engineers Still Out

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

The longest and most expensive strike in Fox Cities history ended Sunday afternoon and Teamsters reported back to work today at ready mix concrete firms with a $2.85 wage and fringe package under their belts.

Wage increases and additional fringe benefits are spread out over the life of a five-year contract the seven-member Fox Valley Contractor Material Suppliers Association signed with Teamsters Local 563.

It had been predicted, following several hours of mediation

last week, that agreement would be reached over the weekend to end the 10-month walkout which delayed highway and other major construction in the region.

Terms of the settlement just about double the pay scales existing in the former three-year contract that expired May 1, 1968.

The Teamsters and members of Local 159 of the Operating Engineers struck the association on July 29, 1968.

Operating Engineers, who still are in negotiations with the association, remained off the job.

About 175 Teamsters met at the Labor Hall Sunday morning and unanimously endorsed the new pact after it was outlined by Robert Schlieve, secretary-treasurer and chief negotiator for Local 563.

Over the five-year length of the new contract — extending from May 1, 1968, to May 1, 1973 — hourly wages of dump truck drivers will rise to $5.87 from the present $3.27; mechanics to $6.25 from $3.57; concrete plant operators (weight batchers) to $6.15 from $3.37, and ready-mix and semi-truck drivers to $6.05 from $3.37.

Over $1 Million Total impact of pay and fringe benefit increases during the life of the contract has been estimated at over $1 million.

The wage increments, with slight variation for dump truck drivers, include 55 cents for 1968; 65 cents, May 1, 1969; 35 cents, Dec. 1, 1969; 55 cents, May 1, 1970; 30 cents, May 1, 1971; 25 cents, Dec. 1, 1971; 30 cents, May 1, 1972; and 28 cents, Dec. 1, 1972.

Weekly pension contribution of employers will be $6 to $8 retroactive to May 1, 1969; $8 to $9 on May 1, 1970; and $9 to $10 as of May 1, 1971.

Other fringes include three weeks' vacation after 10 years' service beginning in 1970, a seventh paid holiday and increased health and welfare benefits.

The lengthy and sometimes bitter dispute triggered a series of vandalism and unfair labor charges and counter charges. After the strike extended into this spring, it was obvious both sides were at a standoff.

Officially, the strike ended at 1:05 p.m. Sunday when Schlieve and attorney Joseph Meli, Madison, representing the association, ironed out the final language and signed the new agreement.

The stage for the settlement, which might have an effect on wage rates paid in other Fox Valley communities, was set in recent weeks through the efforts of Don Lee, Madison, a mediator with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission.

May Be Vulnerable Because Teamster Locals in Fond du Lac-Oshkosh, Sheboygan and Green Bay have a parity clause geared to the wage rates of Local 563 at Appleton, ready mix concrete firms in those areas may find themselves vulnerable to contract reopeners.

Negotiators for the association and union worked constantly most of last week to push for the settlement, a source said.

While the association had held firm during the long strike, so did the Teamsters and Operating Engineers in their picketing. Local 563, according to Teamsters officials, had "the complete support" of the International Union, Central States Conference and Wisconsin Joint Council from the outset to the settlement of the strike.

Three years ago the Teamsters and association had a similar dispute but the strike then lasted only during the summer. Sunday's settlement came at a time when construction would normally be shifted into high gear throughout the region.

Nixon, Thieu in Harmony, Agree to Pull 25,000 GIs

Further Withdrawals Apparently Planned

BY FRANK CORMIER

MIDWAY ISLAND (AP) — President Nixon's first move to pare down the United States troop commitment in Vietnam — by 25,000 men as a start — was followed Sunday night by a strong affirmation of Washington-Saigon solidarity. The harmony declaration came from President Nguyen Van Thieu in off-the-cuff remarks to newsmen following his summit meeting with Nixon on tiny, mid-Pacific Midway Island.

Referring to advance speculation that there might be serious differences between the United States and the Saigon government over ways and means to promote the search for peace, Thieu said with emphasis: "This is not true. . . . We have a very close understanding on that."

Following five hours of talks, most of them with only one key adviser sitting beside each chief executive, Nixon returned to Honolulu for an overnight stay and Thieu flew back to Saigon.

Thieu expressed satisfaction with Nixon's decision to withdraw 25,000 American troops from his country, with all indications pointing to further withdrawals.

He called it "good news for the American people" and declared: "We will do our best from now on to alleviate the burden of the American people."

It seemed evident the American delegation at Midway hoped the move would help defuse homefront criticism of Nixon's Vietnam policy.

McCarthy Critical But Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., said he didn't "see that this is any significant indication of any program to try and resolve or end the war."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., commented: "I can't see where this represents any significant shift of American policy. . . . I think we ought to begin taking them all out, and the faster the better, as far as I am concerned."

In his announcement, Nixon said:

"President Thieu informed me that the progress of the training program and the equipment program for South Vietnamese forces had been so successful that he could now recommend that the United States begin to replace U.S. combat forces with Vietnamese forces. As a consequence of the recommendation by the president and the assessment of our own commander in the field, I have decided to order the immediate redeployment from Vietnam of a division equivalent of approximately 25,000 men. Starts in 30 Days

"This troop replacement will begin within the next 30 days and will be completed by the end of August. . . . I will announce plans for further withdrawals."

Hanoi Labels Announcement 'Crude Farce'

Paris Negotiators Fail to Soften Stand on Peace

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam today described as a "crude farce" the announcement of Presidents Nixon and Nguyen Van Thieu that the United States will withdraw 25,000 troops from South Vietnam by the end of August.

A spokesman for the Hanoi delegation to the Paris peace talks asserted that the Midway meeting of the allied leaders shows more clearly than ever "the obstinacy with which the Nixon administration clings to its policy of aggression and neocolonialism."

The bitterness of the initial North Vietnamese reaction was seen by conference observers as a sign that the decision to withdraw the 25,000 U.S. troops had not softened the position of the other side in the peace negotiations.

The questions posed by the allied spokesmen included these: —Would Hanoi and the National Liberation Front take the announcement as a sign of weakness which might lead eventually to a unilateral withdrawal of all U.S. forces?

—Would they take it as a gimmick which meant nothing and repeat their charges that the troops being withdrawn were "ice cream vendors" and other men whose presence had no military significance?

—Would they argue that the withdrawals meant nothing from a military standpoint since they were being replaced by South Vietnamese forces?

Kennedy Sees No Opposition

Burger OK Likely Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The announced selection 19 days ago. Senate may usher in a new judicial era with confirmation today of Warren E. Burger as chief justice of the United States.

Senate leaders seeking to wrap up work on the confirmation, after a false start last week, had all the technicalities taken care of for a planned vote this afternoon on the first change in high court administration—and possibly its judicial trend—in 16 years.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, acting Democratic leader, asked for a roll call vote although he said he has heard of no opposition.

No one in the Senate had expressed any criticism of Burger who was promoted from the District of Columbia appeals court to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren. President Nixon asserted his dedication to a much stricter interpretation of the Constitution than the Warren Court followed in some cases.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., told Burger that he reads the nominee's appeals court opinions as favoring a restraint and balance between the rights of the accused and society itself in the handling of criminal suspects. Warren Court decisions in many such cases aroused angry criticism in the Senate.

Burger pleased nearly all Judiciary Committee members by saying the Supreme Court has no power to legislate or to amend the Constitution—charges critics have voiced against Warren's direction of the court.

The 61-year-old judge indicated he will sever connections with non-judicial organizations. He listed six organizations to which he belongs, including the Mayo Foundation which has paid him $6,000 in fees as a trustee.

Foundations are a sensitive issue because of the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas after it was disclosed he had accepted a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of Louis E. Wolfson, a financier now serving a prison term.

Burger, a former Republican chairman of his native state of Minnesota, knows his way around politics. He was credited with helping swing Minnesota's deciding votes to Dwight D. Eisenhower when the latter defeated the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952. He served as an assistant attorney general in the Eisenhower administration.

Dirksen, in explaining the abandonment of the previous effort to get confirmation, said Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had suggested speeding Senate action. Dirksen said he didn't know why but was confident that there was no thought of replacing the retiring Warren before the present high court term ends. He noted that Burger will not take office until Nixon signs his commission.

Although his appointment was cheered loudly by conservative Republicans and Democrats as portending a new trend on the high court, Burger has said he will not be a captive of either conservatives or liberals.

His credo, as he puts it, is that every case has to stand on individual merits. He says he regards his opinions during the 13 years on the Circuit Court as far more liberal than the conservative like to think they are.

On the other hand, Burger has

Milwaukee's Major Breweries on Strike

MILWAUKEE (AP) — three hours, ending Sunday night with no further talk sessions scheduled. Management's offer had been for an hourly wage increase of 57 cents spread over two years. The basic wage under a contract which expired May 31 was $3.89 an hour.

Except for some unauthorized walkouts, and a 95-day walkout by mechanics which did not interrupt production last year, the breweries have had no serious work stoppages since a 76-day strike which virtually wiped out the supply of Milwaukee-brewed beer in 1953.

Banks Boost Prime Rate To 8½ Per Cent

Increase to New Record Is Larger Than Anticipated

NEW YORK (AP) — Major banks today raised the prime rate—the interest charged their biggest and best customers for loans—to a historic high of 8½ per cent from 7½ per cent, effective immediately.

An increase had been expected for some time. But the amount of the hike—a full one per cent—was surprising.

The first bank to increase the rate was Bankers Trust Co. of New York and it did so without making any comment on its reasons. Other New York banks, and then Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston banks quickly made the same move. Among the banks was Chase Manhattan and First National City of New York.

The prime rate is used in determining the interest rate charged most large corporations. Other rates, such as interest rates to consumers, are scaled upward from the prime rate.

The old rate of 7½ per cent was a record high when it was set on March 17. As recently as last Dec. 2 the rate was 6¼. A series of rate increases, usually one-fourth or one-half of a per cent at a time, had occurred between December and March.

The Federal Reserve Board has taken a number of steps to make it more expensive and more difficult for banks to borrow money. But the demand on banks for money to borrow has continued strong.

By raising the prime rate banks can afford to pay more for the money they borrow.

All From Milwaukee Suburb

10 Feared Dead in Oneida County Cabin Blaze

THREELAKES (AP) — An early morning fire that destroyed a log cabin in Wisconsin's north woods resort area claimed the lives of at least eight persons. Authorities said two more bodies were being sought.

The Oneida County sheriff's office said eight bodies had been recovered in mid-morning from the ruins of the rented cottage on Virgin Lake.

All of the victims, including three adults, one believed to have been a priest, and three children, were reportedly from St. Francis, a Milwaukee suburb.

ban community, officers said. Names were withheld pending notification of relatives.

A passing motorist, whose identity was not learned, discovered the fire at 5:15 a.m., stopped at the nearest residence and asked that the fire department be called.

Members of the volunteer fire department from Three Lakes, situated three and one-half miles to the west, found that the roof and ceiling of the story and a half cabin had collapsed. All that remained were still burning portions of the exterior log walls.

Observation Doesn't Reveal Soviet Warhead Advances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Observation of a series of Soviet missile tests in the Pacific has left Pentagon experts uncertain whether the Russians now have multiple warheads which can be steered to separate targets.

American ships stationed in Russia's Pacific testing area have watched three or four extended range test shots of the giant SS9 intercontinental ballistic missile since April.

A study of telemetry and other data gathered by the observing U.S. vessels has been inconclusive as to whether the Soviets have multiple warheads which they fire in clusters, or whether they have mastered the technology of separately targeting each of the warheads, sources say.

Surviving Oilmen Bear No Grudges

11 of 29 Killed When Biafrans Overran Camp

ROME (AP) — "We bear no hate toward the Biafrans," one of the oilmen freed by the rebels in Eastern Nigeria said Sunday night. "They are a people who know nothing of the rest of the world."

"They don't even know that Italy exists," Vittorio Lucarelli continued as he told how the Biafran soldiers that overran the oilmen's camp near Kwalu, Mid-west Nigeria, a month ago argued among themselves about how many to kill. They shot 11 of 29.

"The ones who fired into our group were part of an advance patrol, they were all young," Lucarelli said. "They understood only that their job was to kill, not be killed."

Put in Hole

After 10 Italians and a Jordanian were shot, Lucarelli said, "they took us to a nearby village where the people wanted to jump on us and kill us. They put us in a big hole covered with cloth. We stayed there for three days."

"Then we had a trial, but even before that someone gave us to understand that we would be condemned to die. We were convinced that there was no hope left. No one, in fact, said anything about the intervention of the Italian government. We felt abandoned."

The Biafran leader, Lt. Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, pardoned the men after appeals by other African governments, the governments of France and Portugal and by Pope Paul VI. Biafra had charged that the oilmen were fighting alongside federal Nigerian troops.

The 18 survivors—14 Italians, three West Germans and a Lebanese—were taken to Gabon, an African nation that recognizes Biafra. They were flown to Rome Saturday, arriving just before midnight to be welcomed by thousands at the airport and received in a special audience by the Pope.

Interior Secretary Walter Hickel punches the speed bag during his daily workout in his department's gymnasium. (AP Wirephoto)

Hickel Stays In Ring, Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — The exercises encourage quick reflexes, accurate counter punching and fancy footwork, useful skills for politics, but they mean physical fitness to Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel.

Hickel, 49, works out almost daily for exactly one hour either in the Interior Department gym or in a private athletic club a few blocks away.

Udall used to say, "I love that expression 'run for your life'."

The big Arizonan was a familiar figure in blue workout clothes, jogging across capital parks or in the van-guard of a clutch of VIP's opening a new jogging trail.

The former secretary also was fond of mountain climbing and shooting the white water of the Colorado River.

Hickel's daily routine is that of a boxer: punching the speed bag, skipping rope, and jogging a precise 17 laps around the gym.

A former Claflin, Kan., farm boy, Hickel won the Kansas Golden Gloves welterweight boxing championship in 1938 at the age of 19.

He has stayed in training ever since, and hard work in his adopted state of Alaska helped keep him tough.

While Udall occasionally took a newsman or a lawmaker along jogging, Hickel has so far resisted the temptation to invite a journalist or senator into the ring with him.

Enemy Raids Drop Sharply; U.S. Unsure of Explanation

SAIGON (AP) — After three days of heavy fighting across South Vietnam, enemy attacks dropped off sharply Sunday night.

U.S. spokesmen could offer no firm explanation for the sudden drop in North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks, except possibly the heavy losses the enemy had suffered. Military sources estimated about 2,500 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops have been killed by allied forces since the sudden upsurge in enemy activity began last Thursday night.

The U.S. Command has made no announcement of total U.S. casualties during this period, but informed sources estimate that more than 150 Americans have been killed.

Midway Meeting

Military analysts considered the step-up in enemy attacks an attempt to influence the Midway meeting between Presidents Nixon and Nguyen Van Thieu. With the meeting over, it appeared that the Viet Cong might be returning to business as usual.

The U.S. Command reported more than 20 rocket and mortar attacks Sunday night and early today, less than half the 59 attacks the night before. There were 63 on Friday night and more than 100 Thursday.

U.S. headquarters said overall casualties and damage were light Sunday night.

U.S. officers, including Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, see the enemy activity not as a general summer offensive but rather as a continuing campaign to harass allied forces and inflict heavy casualties. Enemy forces launch a series of heavy attacks for two or three days, then pull back, regroup and hit again later.

Warning Volleys Fired at Japanese Fishing Vessel

NOME, Alaska (AP) — The Coast Guard says one of its cutters fired three shots across the bow of a Japanese fishing boat before the vessel stopped and was seized for fishing inside the United States' 12-mile limit in Norton Sound.

A Coast Guard spokesman gave this account:

The fishing vessel was sighted Saturday about five miles from shore, and its sister ship about 3 1/2 miles out, in the arm of the Bering Sea south of here. The sister ship dove to, but the other vessel fled seaward.

The cutter Storrs forced the Japanese ship to halt about 20 miles out after firing the shots. A boarding party was put on each ship and the 90-foot ship, identified as the Zenpo Maru No. 8 and the FS 2-2150, were brought here Sunday.

The Storrs remained in the Norton Sound area to keep nearly three dozen other ships of the Japanese fishing fleet under surveillance.

Charges were withheld until the Storrs' captain returns to sign complaints. After the complaints are entered, the skippers will be arraigned before a U.S. Commissioner.

Nixon's announcement came as no surprise in Saigon. Most military men had expected it.

"It's too small to affect the war," said Spec. S Nick Coenenko, 22, of Passaic, N.J., "but I hope I'm one of those 25,000."

U.S. Headquarters said eight of the attacks Sunday night were significant, meaning they caused casualties or damage.

The heaviest attack was against South Vietnamese paratroopers along the Cambodian border protecting Tay Ninh City, 55 miles northwest of Saigon.

North Vietnamese troops fired more than 200 rockets and mortars into their night bivouac, then followed with a ground assault. The four-hour battle lasted until dawn and a spokesman said 37 North Vietnamese were killed. South Vietnamese losses were three killed and a number of wounded.

Three of the enemy attacks by rockets and mortars, apparently aimed for military posts, fell into populated areas instead. South Vietnamese headquarters said eight civilians were killed and 41 wounded.

Apache Snow

The U.S. Command announced that Operation Apache Snow, the big sweep through the A Shau Valley 32 miles west of Hue, was terminated June 7 after nearly a month. It said U.S. and South Vietnamese forces killed more than 977 of the enemy and captured more than 700 weapons. U.S. losses were 113 killed and 627 wounded; South Vietnamese casualties were reported light.

In announcing the end of the operation, the command confirmed that U.S. paratroopers had abandoned Ap Bia mountain, which newsmen in the field reported two weeks ago. The mountain was captured May 20 after 10 days of fighting in which more than 50 Americans were killed and 300 wounded. The battle touched off a controversy in Congress with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., terming such assaults "senseless and irresponsible."

Old Paul Revere Bowl Is Stolen

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — A 200-year-old baptismal bowl made by Paul Revere and other rare pieces from an historical silver service have been stolen from Old North Congregational Church.

Police said professional safe-crackers apparently did the job Saturday night, blasting open the church safe.

The Rev. George Hooten, pastor, said the silver pieces were worth between $250,000 and $400,000.

He said the Paul Revere bowl was used frequently in baptismal services.

Spain Seals Off Access to Gibraltar In Effort to Squeeze British Off Rock

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Spain sealed off the road to the Rock of Gibraltar at midnight Sunday, locking its 4,600 Spanish workers outside.

Cut off from their jobs in the 250-year-old British bastion that guards the entrance to the Mediterranean were most of the peninsula's barbers, cobblers and bakers. Other Spaniards worked in the dockyards, hotels, restaurants and on building projects.

In the border town of La Linea de la Concepcion, which exists mainly on wages brought in from Gibraltar.

Fernando Banalos, 49, a truck driver on the Rock, said, "Most of these workers are in their late 50s and even 60s. It's not easy to get a good job even at my age."

The Spanish government said the workers would be taken care of.

The conquest in a treaty signed in 1713. The Spanish government has demanded off and on since then that the British give the fortress back.

Franco's latest action was in retaliation to a new constitution drawn up by the British and Gibraltar governments which states in its preamble that the people of Gibraltar will never be allowed to "pass under the sovereignty of another state against their freely and democratically expressed wishes."

2-Day Notice

The Spanish Cabinet ordered the shutdown Friday, giving only 48 hours' notice that the border would be sealed. The order probably will sharply curtail tourist visits. Foreigners can now come only by ship or plane from some country outside Spain.

There were tearful scenes at the La Linea gate Saturday night as workers, shopkeepers and businessmen crossed the border in a slow procession. Streets and bars were crowded

Hurt Both Sides

In London, members of Parliament prepared demands for retaliation but sources said the government was reluctant to hit back at Spain. The Times of London said: "Politically inspired boycotts and economic wars almost always damage both sides. In the end both sides usually get tired and start talking sensibly to each other again."

Under an emergency plan drawn up in anticipation of Franco's move, laborers who live on the peninsula will be asked to put in overtime until Moroccan and Maltese workers can be brought in. The British government is expected to increase its aid to the former crown colony to meet expected losses in tourist and shipping earnings.

Writer Bitter; Says Advice Was Wrong

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Who gave you a license to play God? How can you be sure your advice is always right? Well, it isn't, and I know because I am one of your victims.

Three years ago, when I was 16, I became pregnant. My boyfriend was 18. When I told Mickey I was carrying his child, he left town. He didn't say where he was going — he just left. My mother had died the year before and I hated my stepfather. I was scared to death and felt all alone when I wrote to you for advice. You gave away my baby and I lost all chance to marry a wonderful boy. — Nellie

Dear Nellie: The advice I gave you was good advice at the time. I'd give it again. The best solution for a 16-year-old pregnant girl whose boyfriend takes a hike is to give up her child for adoption. The chances of the boy returning and offering marriage are mighty slim.

As for your having lost a chance to marry a "wonderful boy" — I see nothing wonderful about a heel who disappears and leaves his pregnant girl friend to face the future alone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm going to marry a wonderful man whose last name is the same as a notorious crook. It so happens that the crook is a distant relative of my fiancé's father — like a third cousin. The wedding is in August and several of my out-of-town relatives are coming in for the occasion. I am certain they will ask me if my husband is related to the hoodlum. What shall I say? — Gee Gee

Dear G.: Say, "Yes. He's a cousin." Nobody will believe it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 18-year-old girl who is ashamed to be asking this question, but I do need an answer.

When a young man takes me to the door to say good-night (a very special young man, of course) would it be too obvious suggested the Florence Crittenton home and closed by saying, "Give the baby up for adoption, then get back in school and graduate." I took your advice and I'll never forgive myself.

Mickey showed up last week and wanted to see his child. When I told him what I had done he broke down and cried. He said he had come back to marry me but he hated the sight of me because I gave away his child. He said I had no right to do that and he would never forgive me.

You have ruined my life, Ann Landers. On account of you I

I removed my glasses in anticipation of a good-night kiss? I would die on the spot if I took off my glasses and he didn't kiss me. Please answer in the paper. My mother never looks to see to whom a letter is addressed. She opens everything. Thank you. — Paned

Dear Paned: I've checked with several young ladies who wear specs and they say glasses do not discourage romance. In other words, specs often make passes at girls who wear glasses.

Margaret Mead Predicts Switch in Sexual Roles

NEW YORK (AP) — Anthropologist Margaret Mead says a switch in sexual roles is in the offing and "men may actually discover they want to stay home to mind the children now."

Dr. Mead says this would be the first time in 10,000 years of human development that such a phenomenon had occurred.

Dr. Mead, whose studies of sexual mores among South Pacific tribes brought her scientific acclaim in the late 1920s and early 1930s, spoke Wednesday night to the Omicron Kappa Upsilon dental honor society's Omega chapter.

She said sexual roles "are beginning to break down" as a result of fathers minding children. The practice of paternal baby-sitting began when returning servicemen in the mid-1940s chose to go to school on the GI bill, study at night, and let their wives assume the burden of family support, Dr. Mead said.

The 67-year-old anthropologist, who is a Columbia University adjunct professor and curator of ethnology at the American Museum of Natural History, also theorized that young men and women have begun to wear "unisex" clothing for two reasons: Young women are rebelling against being a sex object in order to get a husband," she said, "and boys are turning from drab business-like attire in order to rebel against any possibility of supporting a wife."

Knit it yourself

Airy Summer Knit

BY LOIS HOLMES

Delicate knit panels that look like crochet gives this summer cardigan an "airy" appearance. Made of lightweight sport yarn with an easy raglan sleeve, it features a knitted-in hem (no thread to pop), full-fashion detailing and a very flattering collar. Shown here in pastel lavender with white, in combination with basic sheath pattern, Hand Knit-431 or Machine Knit-431, it makes a smart, yet very feminine, costume. Knit the cardigan alone, all in white, and you'll have the perfect little summer sweater that you've longed for. Shown with three-quarter sleeves, but pattern gives direction for full-length sleeves, as well. If you would like a skirt pattern and do not have it already, order Hand Knit-437 or Machine Knit-437. Sizes 8-16 (34-42 inches) are all included in each pattern.

Sportweight Basic Sheath, Hand Knit-431 or Machine Knit-431 (8-16) $1.

5 Way Sportweight Skirt, Hand Knit-437 or Machine Knit-437 (8-16) $1.

To order Hand Kit-521 Summer Raglan Cardigan, send $1 in currency, check, or money order to Lois Holmes of California, Post-Crescent Box 6002, Englewood, Calif. 90302.

Please print your name, address, zip code and pattern numbers plainly. Send 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mail and special handling, or 25 cents each for air mail.

DEAR LOIS: I am a yarn-shop owner and wish you would give a simple pattern for something that would induce the ladies to use that extra skein of yarn they always buy. It is usually a complete loss to us plus the time we spend. — Nancies' Nook.

Dear Nancie: Pillows are coming in big and since you can make them so quickly (especially on the machine) you might set up a display of pillows. Everyone has a use for them.

Buy a large modern print, Picasso or Matisse for example, then co-ordinate yarns to the colors in your print and knit small toss pillows for your display. Plain, striped, pattern stitches, fringed complete around, tasseled on the corners, appliqued with "patches" or embroidered — there's no end. One of my customers is now making them for a big department store. She knits the plain pillows on her machine and they decorate them — custom order.

Basic Small Plain Pillow Top

Materials: 1-4 oz. skein 4-ply knitting worsted, 1 pr. knitting needles Size 7 (or on knitting machine) every other needle.

Stitch pattern — stockinette
Stitch Gauge — 5 sts equal 1 inch. 6½ rows equal 1 inch.

Cast on 62 stitches. Work in stockinette stitch as far as possible, reserving only enough yarn to weave side seams and ends together; insert correct pillow size and weave ends together. Decorate as desired.

A Magic Moment to Remember

The Post-Crescent A 12

Graduation is an important occasion and one that will provide the graduates with memories for years to come.

For members of the graduation classes of Appleton High School-East and Appleton High School-West, there will be much to remember.

Thursday evening began with the awarding of diplomas at ceremonies at each school and, for many, ended with breakfast at the Appleton Elks Club.

A graduation prom for seniors from both schools was held from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Conway Hotel. This year's theme was "This Magic Moment" and a Camelot setting provided the backdrop for the event.

Students from both schools were responsible for planning and included Nancy Hering and Steve Watts, publicity; Cheryl Fredericks and Chris Palmer, decorations; Don Hietpas and Laurie Jones, tickets, and Cindy Douglas and Sue Hellestad, chaperones.

phy, John Ehricke, Sandra Wiegand and Andy Hardacker take time out from dancing to chat.

Jaycettes Install Officers at Honor Program

Mrs. Lowell Leininger was installed as president of the Appleton Jaycettes at the Jaycee-Jaycette June Installation and Awards Program Tuesday. Serving with her will be Mrs. James Krupka, vice president; Mrs. David Tuch, state director; Mrs. Jerome Kolosso, secretary; Mrs. Lee West, treasurer; Mrs. James Gear, parliamentarian; and Mrs. George Berger, Mrs. Roger Clark and Mrs. Keith Long, board members. Mrs. Richard Schouten, local chapter and Wisconsin Jaycette president in 1944-5, conducted the installation. Mrs. Tuch, president for the past year, presented the Jaycette awards. The Award of Recognition for Faithful and Outstanding Service was given to Mrs. Robin Long for her leadership, contributions and service to the Jaycettes throughout her six-year membership. Mrs. Leininger was honored as the Outstanding Jaycette of the Year for her contributions to the chapter during the current year.

Mrs. Berger and Mrs. James Long were awarded the Spoke Award, as first year members who have rendered outstanding service to the group and fulfilled other necessary requirements. Exhausted Hen Status and Life Memberships were conferred upon Mrs. Ralph McHugh and Mrs. Robin Long. Exhausted hen status recognizes the fact that the Jaycette's husband has reached the "retirement" age of 36 in the Jaycee organization. They received life memberships because they are past presidents of the Appleton Jaycettes.

Awards of Recognition and Appreciation were presented to the Outagamie County Bank and The Post-Crescent for their fine cooperation with the group's public relations. Partner opens the bidding with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-8 7 4; H-Q J 10 8 7; D-9 8 3; C-7 3. What do you say? Answer: Bid two hearts or pass. The hand is not really worth a response, but the argument for a raise is that you may just barely manage to keep the opponent out of the auction. Your partner should be able to win only one heart trick at most on defense, and the opponents may therefore be able to make a high contract in some other suit if they can just get into the bidding.

Don't Draw Trump Out Too Fast

BY ALFRED GREENWOLD
One of the basic principles of playing a hand at a trump contract is to ruff losers in the dummy when dummy has shortness in a side suit combined with length in trumps. Don't draw the trumps in such cases until after you have ruffed your losers. You take the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds in order to return a heart at once. You expect to lose one diamond and two hearts, but you plan to ruff your third low heart with one of dummy's trumps. An opponent wins and returns a trump in a belated attempt to get the trumps out of dummy. You win with dummy's nine of trumps and lead the other heart. The opponents win and lead another trump to your ace. But now you have won the

You can lead your last heart and ruff with dummy's jack of trumps. You get back with the ace of clubs to draw the last missing trump, and then you claim your contract. You would lose your game if you drew even one round of trumps before leading hearts. West would take the first heart with the king and would lead a second trump. This would allow East to win the second heart and lead a third round of trumps, removing the last trump from the dummy. Now you would lose three hearts and one diamond. West could defeat you by his own efforts if he opened a trump instead of the king of diamonds. However, any defender who finds this brilliant opening lead has X-ray eyes and should study medicine in order to make the maximum contribution to humanity with his great gift.

The point to remember is that if you begin such a hand by drawing trumps you are playing the opponents' game. You should bet on them instead of on your own side.

Hair Is Issue From the Haight To Madison Avenue

By CINDY BORDEN
WAUKESHA (AP)—When the length of hair gets to be as big an issue as it is today, people begin wondering why. Some say long hair on men is a sign of masculinity. Others claim it is a show of individuality. Several feel it is a passing craze. To a few, it symbolizes freedom. But nobody seems to have the complete answer. Most authorities—barbers and long-hairs alike—tend to agree the Beatles started it. As one hippie put it, "I really dig the Beatles, man—I like everything about them."

Why the trend continued is another question. A bearded youth with shoulder-length hair said, "I always wanted to grow my hair, you know? After I finally let it grow, I really liked it." He resents people telling him, "Take a bath, dirty hippie." Washes Hair Often
"I wash my hair every other day, and most long-haired people do," he said. "You take good care of your hair when it's long." A 24-year-old college dropout from San Jose, Calif., visiting Waukesha, said he likes what long hair stands for—freedom. "It's really a challenge to keep it long. People turn against you because your hair is three inches longer than theirs," he said. "They don't care about your inner feelings. You can tell what they're sincere or so I grew some whiskers. Then not. Everybody's got their own life to live—so let them live it, man."

And the older generation—what's their excuse for a sudden outgrowth of sideburns, mustaches and bewiskered chins? "I've been growing a beard since 1964," said John Schroeder, 29, of Waukesha. His first growth was for the 1957 Waukesha Centennial Hunting season. He has passed, yet his beard remains. Why?

"Well, I shaved it off," Schroeder said, "but it felt ridiculous. I felt like I didn't have any chin. I grew it back because my chin got cold when I rode my motorcycle."

His excuse, aside from a chilly chin, is a zest for variety. "Why do women change their hair styles or buy a new hat? It's for a change of pace," he said. Dr. Joseph Bartos, Waukesha, said it all started with his sons. "I grew sideburns to go along with them. Then I grew a mustache. Pretty soon the mustache was connected with the beard, and I realized what a tremendous time-saver it is."

His real test will be met this summer, however. Trend Hurts Barbers
"I've not experienced a summer with my growth," Bartos said. "That may be a deciding factor as to its future." But long hair isn't "freedom" for everyone. In fact, it represents something close to oppression for some—the barbers.

It's hurt our business quite a bit," said Dick Reesman, a barbershop manager in Mukwonago. "Those who used to come every three weeks now come every month and a half."

Some barbershops have been forced to take up sidelines such as crew-cut. Now, it's long hair."

as selling toupees. Most have succumbed to the trend by offering "long hair" styling, which cost about three times as much as a regular hair trim, and consequently makes up for the infrequent visits. One Waukesha barber recalls a bushy-headed youth walking into his shop, where hair cuts are usually $2.50, asking for a "$1.25 trim."

Jobs Revamp Philosophy
Ed Gohde, owner of a barbershop in Big Bend, feels the long-hair trend will pass. But meanwhile, it's being supported by mass media, he said. "Look at television. You see Dean Martin or any of them—none are well-groomed," Gohde said. "The kids will change their philosophy about long hair when they start looking for a job," he added.

John Padinger, owner of a Hartland barbershop, also feels it is just another trend. "In the 1920s, I remember me wearing chin-length hair all greased and slicked back—it looked horrible. Then it was the crew-cut. Now, it's long hair."

Middle Riddle Solved

Fancy a lovely lost the best she ever had in the world with the demise of the shifty little dress. Not except the old tent coat so screened a middle muddle. Currently, belts at the waist seldom are really snug, but y put the figure's midsection notice. We won't even mention those giveaways the cut-s and cut-downs. What we'll

Adjacent to a wall, stand tall with right arm stretched to side at shoulder level so that fingertips are four inches from wall. By bending repeatedly in waist, try to touch wall for half-minute. (If you are very tall or short, adjust distance from wall to allow for a good stretch.) Reverse position and bend to left for half-minute.

You can diet until you become feather-light and still be hip-heavy. Reduction in the hips is assured only by exercise. For a set of quick and effective ones, send for my leaflet, Hip Reducing Routines. Advertisement NEW FORMULA FOR A YOUNGER FIGURE

There often is a very small difference between a good figure and a beautiful figure. Usually, it is a matter of a younger, more shapely bustline. Remarkably, bust size has little to do with a youthful line. Because now there is a new design formula for bras. One that can give any woman within a reasonably average size range a prettier—even beautiful bustline.

This new underwire bra concept is by the famous California designer, Olga. She has created the first truly beautiful and comfortable underwire styles. The secret is in slim, flat underwires that invisibly contour themselves to the body, and give both support and separation. Because the support is beneath the bustline, there is no pulling at the straps. And the cups do the job they were meant for—to shape beautifully.

What Olga has also done is to give a fashionable look to the underwire. The styles are young, weightless and truly elegant. If you have thought that underwire bras until now were for the mature, or fuller figure, you will be thrilled at how light charm is combined with serious purpose.

The new Olga underwire bras are in a full size range, from 32B to 38D. They are available both in soft cup and contour shell cup styles, in nylon lace and fashionably smooth 2-ply nylon tricot. You will find them at H. C. Prange Co. and other stores with fashion spirit.

Neenah to Update Finance Planning

NEENAH — Anticipated capital improvements for 1976 have been called for so the capital expenditures committee can revise and update the city's long-range financial plan.

First proposed and adopted last year, the long range plan attempts to lay out capital expenditures so the city can put its future financial obligations into perspective.

The 1968 plan, which projected capital improvements to 1975, included over $19 million in a plan which took into account city tax base and dollar inflationary growth to hold the tax rate increase to a minimum.

Each year department heads are asked to submit an updated version of their anticipated needs so the plan can be kept current.

The capital expenditures committee will be meeting for the first time this year on June 19 to review the departmental requests and set priorities for 1976 plus revise its plan adopted a year ago and updated in January.

The seven-man committee attempts to spread out city spending to hold down the impact of any one project of hitting the tax rate in any one year.

Last year's program indicated a tax rate increase of about 40 per cent over the next six years.

An assumption made in the long range plan is a $5.4 million annual tax base growth which was the yearly average between 1962 and 1968.

Recent annexations especially that of the Bergstrom Paper Company plant on U.S. 41 will give the city's equalized valuation boost for 1971 when its impact will first be felt on the tax rolls.

As the program now stands, 1970 will be the toughest year to hurdle. Next year, taxpayers will be facing an 11.2 tax rate hike. But from then on, until 1975, the rate of increase fades to an average of about six per cent.

One of the main factors in the 1970 budget is the $4.5 million bond issue to finance construction of the new Neenah west high school. By 1971, present annexations will be on the tax rolls and the bond issue impact will be minimized.

Mayor Donald Hassler has also built into the plan a pay-as-you-go program for some capital improvements including $400,000 for Swatscheno Park development, a bridge over the slough at Sherry Street and the new southeast fire station.

Licenses for the year beginning July 1 come up for council action June 17, and the process must be completed before then.

Eight-Month-Old Promise to Serviceman Will be Fulfilled

KAUKAUNA — An eight-month-old promise made here to Army 1st Lt. Dennis Gerharz is about to be fulfilled, although it's certain the young serviceman must have wondered if he ever was going to make it.

Just before Dennis left for Vietnam last Oct. 7, his uncle, James Mc Fadden, Kaukauna attorney, promised Gerharz if he could get rest and recuperation leave in Honolulu, Hawaii, he would fly his fiancée over for a reunion.

Little did Mc Fadden, or his wife, Evelyn, realize, that for the next six months their nephew would have an extremely difficult time in holding up to his end of the bargain.

For six months the member of the 101st Airborne Division fought on "Hamburger Hill," in the A Shau Valley, and on several search and destroy and followup reconnaissance missions.

OSU to Enroll 70 Black Students in Fall

Between 70 and 90 black students will enroll next September at Oshkosh State University, (OSU) James McKee, counselor for culturally distinct students, estimated last week.

Board Posts Open In Winneconne

WINNECONNE — Two positions on the board of education of the Winneconne School District will face voters during the July 28 elections.

The three-year terms are currently held by Clifford Wiedner and Gerard Eisch.

The residents of the school district will be able to cast votes in the lobby of the Winneconne Central School.

This will be the second year the board has set up an all day voting for the board positions. Previously the elections were held during a regular board meeting.

School operation is a major point of concern in the Winneconne district, especially since two referendums, each calling for a new high school, were turned down by residents in late 1968, and again this May.

There were 111 black students on campus last year before most of them were expelled after a Nov. 21 disturbance.

McKee said there were "a number of factors" working against a greater black student population, but he did not itemize them. Presumably, one factor is the reputation OSU gained among young blacks after the expulsion of the 94 black students.

Of the 94, 18 definitely are expected to return to the campus in September, McKee said. And a few more of the expelled students might apply before September, he said.

The university's policy is to accept all of the expelled students as of June 1 at the academic status each held at the time of the disturbance, McKee said.

Formal Estimate Another 20 of the black students will be returning. There are about 30 on campus now, and McKee said two-thirds of them would come back.

The remainder will be students new to the OSU campus. Most will come from Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha, he said.

McKee is now preparing a formal estimate on the number of black students for Richard Netzel, who is coordinating all programs for minority groups.

Both men indicated that federal and state cutbacks in student grants and loans may limit the number of black student applications. But Maurice Spitzer, OSU director of financial aids, said he didn't know whether some students would have to be denied financial assistance.

State requests for federal assistance to students have been severely cut by Congress. State colleges and universities had requested a total of $20 million in federal funds, but only $11.3 million will be available. All three categories of federal assistance, educational opportunity grants, the work-study program and national defense student loans, will be lower than expected.

In addition, the state legislature's joint finance committee has recommended a cut of $3.7 million from budgeted state aids to students, and the status of the cut is still undecided.

Spitzer said he expected next year's federal work-study funds to be "adequate." And, while educational opportunity grants have been cut back, eligibility requirements for the grants have been stiffened, so that the funds available should be sufficient, he said. He predicted that student loan allocations would be hit the hardest.

Netzel said the university and the Milwaukee Educational Opportunity Center, a federally-financed agency which helps black students get into colleges, both were seeking sources of private assistance for black students.

Two Children Watch As 12 in Family Die

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — A teen-age boy and girl watched horrified and helpless as their parents and 10 brothers and sisters perished in a fire which engulfed their $48-a-month home.

Their grandfather, who leaped through a bathroom window, was the only one in the house to escape the blaze.

The eight-room, frame residence was leveled in 45 minutes. Roger Bailey, 13, and his sister Susan, 15, whose father Charles was a county maintenance worker, were staying in a smaller structure behind the house when the fire struck about 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Sitting on a porch banister of an uncle's home later, the dazed boy could manage only a mumbled "yes" or "no" when asked about the fire.

Roger, wearing jeans, cowboy boots and open-necked shirt, smoked a cigarette as he was questioned.

His sister stayed inside her uncle's house, too upset to meet newsmen.

Roger said they had slept in the small building to make room for their grandfather, Obie Bailey, 63, released from a local hospital last week.

Most of the bodies were found in the three bedrooms, and one was found in the dining room.

The grandfather, who was treated in a hospital for shock, said he and Mrs. Bailey, 36, had noticed nothing unusual when they retired at 11 p.m. Saturday. He said they were the last to go to bed.

Cornell President's Resignation Accepted

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — The resignation of James A. Perkins as president of Cornell University has been accepted by the university trustees.

The trustees decided Sunday that full executive authority would be given to Dale R. Corson, the university provost, until a successor to Perkins can be found.

Perkins handed in his resignation in the wake of racial disorders at Cornell in April.

The children killed in the blaze were Nancy, 17; Patricia, 11; Claudia, 8; Mary, 7; Tim, 6; Debbie, 5; Steve, 3; Dale, 2; Ted, 1 and Ricky, 8 months.

Aldermen Will Review Neenah City Applications

NEENAH — City councilmen will meet Wednesday night in a committee-of-the-whole session to review applications for Fifth Ward alderman and city attorney.

The Fifth Ward vacancy came up May 21 when Ald. Harry Miller resigned because he was moving from the ward.

Less than a week later, Charles Schaller, city attorney since 1956, submitted his resignation from the part-time post because of the pressing needs of his private law practice.

The city has been advertising for applications for both jobs and the meeting Wednesday is set to review the applications and interview the persons seeking the posts.

Miller, when he resigned, suggested George Christoph, 311 Eleventh St., as "The most qualified man in the ward to take over as alderman." Christoph, however, has not committed himself.

With Schaller's resignation, the possibility looms for a full-time city attorney, something Mayor Donald Hassler sought six months ago when the 1969 budget was being prepared.

Hassler told the city council last week he felt the city was growing to the point where there were many areas a full-time attorney would benefit the city. He mentioned a salary range of about $13,000 for the post.

Nine Head Lost

Fire Destroys Winchester Barn

WINCHESTER — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large barn and granary and nine calves and heifers early today at the Rufus Palmbach farm, route 1, Neenah.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmbach and a son discovered the blaze shortly before midnight. The Winchester-Clayton volunteer fire department and one truck from the Town of Neenah arrived in time to save a pig pen and a chicken coop containing 100 baby chicks.

Another chicken coop and a corn crib were destroyed, along with several machines in the barn. The barn was about half full of hay and there was some seed in the granary.

The Palmbach's were able to drive all of the milk cows out of the barn.

At State Convention Democrats to Consider Vietnam, ABM Issues

STEVENS POINT (AP) — The Vietnam war, campus disturbances and President Nixon's antiballistic missile proposal figure to get much attention this week when Wisconsin Democrats gather for their annual state convention.

The convention's Resolutions Committee concluded a weekend of pre-convention study with at least 100 resolutions having been offered, chairman Lewis T. Mitniss of Janesville reported Sunday.

The assemblyman said most of the speakers appearing at a committee meeting Saturday felt "that the United States should start the process of getting out" of the Vietnam conflict, "letting the South Vietnamese fight their own battles."

Unwise Expenditure And most committee members, he said, described Nixon's ABM proposal as an "unwise and wasteful expenditure," an opinion expressed earlier this year by Young Democrats at their state meeting.

Mitniss said resolutions handed the committee have been ten-

Sewer Setups Good But Need Upgrading In Outagamie County

Sewer systems in Outagamie County communities appear to be "in good shape" but will need upgrading within three years to meet the new state standards, a Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission has revealed.

The report, representing two years of analysis of each community, points out five communities that need immediate sewer system improvements but adds that community officials are aware of this and working on the problem.

It is critical of improper zoning control throughout the county and indicates a need for more planning in the location of some facilities in relation to terrain.

Thomas Obenberger, commission engineer-planner, will present the report Tuesday morning to the county board to "keep them abreast" of the needs.

COG to Meet With Rutgers Professor

A Rutgers University professor will meet with metropolitan planners in Appleton Friday as part of a university study of the role of the states in solving urban problems.

Thomas Hall, of the New Brunswick, N.J., university's urban study center, will confer with Eugene E. Franchetti, executive director of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) and other COG planners.

Rutgers received a study grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Wisconsin was one of 12 states earmarked for extensive study by the university.

"I expect Mr. Hall will be interested in our problems and how we feel the state is answering them," Franchetti said.

The housing situation will be one of the major concerns. COG is embarking on a regional housing study this year after having received approval of a federal study grant.

Hall will make other contacts in the state, including meetings with the State Department of Local Affairs and Development.

Man Pleads Guilty to Intoxication Charge After Breaking Glass

His shirt covered with blood, Philip Fehrman, 33, 3514 Capital Court, appeared this morning in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 and pleaded guilty to a public intoxication charge brought after he put his arm through a window at an east-side home.

Police arrested Fehrman about 12:45 a.m. today as he was walking in the 1100 block of N. Meade Street.

He was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital for treatment of a deep cut on his right wrist, five puncture wounds to his upper right arm, and a cut right elbow. He then was taken to the county jail.

Police said he became involved in an argument with a woman at a northside tavern Sunday evening and later went to her home on E. Pacific Street, where he broke the window.

Fire at City Park

The Appleton Fire Department was summoned to City Park about 9:15 p.m. Sunday after someone started a fire in a waste basket in the girls' rest room. The burning container had been carried outside by the time firefighters arrived.

P. H. Wilbourne, vice president and general manager, reported that for the first five months of this year, Air Wisconsin carried 32,985 passengers, a 54.1 per cent increase over 1967.

At the same time, the Appleton-based commuter airline has announced interline ticketing and baggage handling agreements with four more major air carriers, bringing the total number of such agreements to 19.

The latest agreements were signed with Aeromexico de Mexico, Algey, National and Northeast.

The Kokomo, Ind., operation has completed its first month, Wilbourne reported, with 914 passengers and 3,146 pounds of freight.

4 From Valley Campus Students Involved in State Education Study

Four Fox Valley Campus students are among 19 students from the four campuses of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay who are meeting today with a representative of the Kellett advisory committee to the Governor's Commission on Education in the initial effort to involve students in a comprehensive study of state education.

Fox Valley students Dan Rudebeck, Helga Bruesewitz, Robert Fustfeld and Robert Laux have joined students from the Green Bay, Manitowoc and Marinette campuses at the sessions.

David Hancock, president of a Chippewa Falls audiovisual equipment firm, is also in Green Bay for the sessions.

Rollin B. Posey, dean of the School of Professional Studies at UWGB and chairman of the meeting, said he and George O'Hearn, associate professor of science education, are attending as observers.

Kellett's committee was organized late last month to serve as an advisory panel to his study of education in Wisconsin. Business, labor, educational and civic leaders from throughout the state were named to the committee. They will work with eight task forces involving between 400 to 500 state residents. The task forces will investigate public and private education at all levels in their effort to determine current and future requirements for a top-quality education system.

Kellett said that the product of his study — a comprehensive report on state education — should be completed by Jan. 1, 1970.

Youth Put Under Supervision for Marijuana Sale

An Appleton youth was placed under one year's supervision of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services this morning for possession and sale of marijuana.

Judge Raymond P. Dohr, of the Juvenile Court, found the 16-year-old boy, a high school junior, delinquent. The youth had appeared in Juvenile Court May 26 and admitted the violation. Dohr continued the case pending a study and report by welfare officials.

Appleton detectives said the youth sold a 17-year-old fellow student a half ounce of marijuana for $7.50 April 25 at Appleton High School-West. The 17-year-old is scheduled to appear in Dohr's court June 23.

Climate of the eight-day event will be on June 19, when the newly elected governor is inaugurated. The oath of office will be administered by Justice Bruce F. Beilfuss of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, who will formally install other state officers, as well as the members of the Badger Boys State Supreme Court.

Knowles will address the audience, and Brig. Gen. James J. Lison Jr., adjutant general of Wisconsin, will act as marshal. Other dignitaries will include the state commander of the American Legion, Casey Jones of Montello, and the president of Ripon College, Dr. Bernard S. Adams.

county residents desire night meetings and night meetings would "encourage public attendance." The first meeting could be for old business and correspondence and the second for new business, the resolution indicated.

Weyenberg said that present day meetings amount to less than six hours because of late morning starts and early afternoon adjournment.

Noting he wants to bring the issue to a head, he said the only move he could recall for night sessions was adjourning a late day session for continuance into the evening. The night meetings were defeated at these times.

"I just want to get it up for a vote," he said, noting it probably would lose but possibly on a fairly close vote.

The Chicago White Sox' Carlos May hits the dirt as he grabs a line drive hit by the Yankee's Bobby Cox, in the eighth inning of the first game of Sunday's doubleheader in New York. May falls to the ground with the ball in his glove, then struggles to hold on despite losing his cap and sun glasses. May played for the Appleton Foxes two years ago. Despite this catch, the White Sox lost both games to the Yanks.

Fires Final-Round 73 Benson Rallies to Win 'Adler' Crown By One Stroke

Kaukauna's Pete Benson came from seven strokes behind Sunday to win the championship of the Adler Brau Amateur Golf tournament on the Winagamie course.

Benson fired a 1-over-par 73 Sunday to edge Gary Kriek and Tim Wainscott by one stroke. Benson, who had carded a 78 Saturday, started the final 18 holes seven strokes behind Kriek, who had recorded a torrid 71 Saturday. Kriek soared to an 81 Sunday.

In a playoff for second place, Kriek birdied to the first extra hole to edge Wainscott. Tim carded a 79 Sunday to go with his first-day 73.

Jim Rudolf and Dick Spangenberg tied for fourth with 153s. Rounding out the top 10 were John Lindberg and Ed Butke, 154s; and John Manter, Tom Gossens and Dennis Babb, 155s.

Steve Mortek edged Glen Hartma for the A flight title, 156 to 57. Len Heinbigner and Bruce Stacker tied for third, with 159s. Next came Jim Edmunds and Pete Besser, 162s; and Gary Braun, 163, and Bob Hayes, 164.

Jim Haas won the B flight title, with a 160 total. Tom Vandenberg, with a 163, was second. Phil Kurczewski came in third with a 166. Finishing fourth and fifth, respectively, were Bill Miller, 168; and George Cistler, 170.

Gene Steinhorst captured the C flight title, with a 176. Bud Koland (186) was second, with Don Sell (187) third. Next came Ron Kendler, 188; and Marty Waite, 190.

Dean Chance Placed on Disabled List

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Twins placed sore-armed pitcher Dean Chance on the disabled list Sunday for 21 days.

Chance reported two weeks late to spring training and injured his arm trying to get in shape too fast. He appeared in seven games, posting a 3-1 record and giving up eight earned runs in 31 innings.

The Twins also announced that veteran reliever Al Worthington, who came out of retirement, has been activated. The right-hander led the club in saves last year.

First 3-Loss Streak Foxes Lose Twin Bill; Lead Cut to 3 Games

DAVENPORT, Ia. — The Quad Cities Angels, who felt the sting of some sharp hitting by the Appleton Foxes when they appeared at Goodland Field last week, got revenge as they swept both ends of a Sunday night twin bill from the Foxes, 6-5 and 2-0.

The double setback gives the Angels three straight wins over Appleton, the longest loss-streak for the Foxes in the Midwest League this season. It cut the Appleton lead over Quincy to three games.

Tonight the same two teams will meet in another double header. Steve O'Neill and Willie Garrison are slated to do the pitching for the Foxes and they will be opposed by Marty Pavick and Virgil Barrientos of the Angels.

In Sunday night's game, the Foxes blew a 5-0 lead. In the second contest, Jerry Lanning of Quad Cities, stopped Appleton cold on a slick 2-hitter for his victory of the season.

Four in First

It looked like the Foxes were off and winging to a victory in the opening contest as they shoved across four runs in the first inning and added another in the second.

In the first frame, Wayne Weatherly doubled with one out and Jim Redmon lofted a high fly to right that fell for another 2-bagger, but Weatherly had to hold up at third. Joe Bowen was walked intentionally to load the bases and after a force out at the plate, Edito Artega walked to force a run home and Hugh Yancey doubled to clear the sacks.

Mets Extend Win Chain to 10 Games Expos Halt Losing Streak at 20

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Gene Mauch finally has kicked his habit, with a helping hand from the Montreal Expos' new third base coach ... a fellow named Gene Mauch.

Mauch, long-suffering manager of the National League expansion club, stationed himself on the coaching line for the first time this season Sunday ... and the Expos promptly broke their near-record losing streak at 20 games by squeezing past Los Angeles 4-3.

"I decided I'd try it while I was driving home last night," the Expos' skipper said of his decision to quit the dugout for the third base coach's box. "I was the best third base coach I ever saw when I was in the minors."

"If I thought it would help, I'd coach both first and third base at the same time."

Rookie right-hander Jerry Robertson, backed by Rusty Staub's two-run homer and Mack Jones' bases-empty blast, posted his first major league victory as the Expos ended their tailspin three losses short of the all-time mark ... set by Mauch's 1961 Philadelphia Phillies.

Win 10th in Row

The New York Mets ran their unbeaten string to 10 games with a 3-2 comeback victory over San Diego; San Francisco stretched Philadelphia's losing skein to eight games with a 9-8 12-inning nod; Houston nipped St. Louis 2-1 in 11 innings and Atlanta swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 11-10 and 4-3.

Rain washed out the Cincinnati-Chicago Cubs game.

Robertson, starting for only the fourth time, took a two-hitter and a 4-1 lead into the ninth at Los Angeles, but gave up two more hits and needed help from veteran Elroy Face as the Dodgers rallied for a pair of runs.

"The toughest part of the whole streak was that ninth inning," said Mauch.

Wayne Garrett's run-scoring single capped a two-run eighth-inning rally that swept the Mets past San Diego, giving right-hander Tom Seaver his ninth victory against three losses. Seaver struck out 14 Padres in seven innings, then left for a hit in the eighth as the Mets came from behind against rookie Al Santorini.

The Mets' winning string matched Houston's 10-game run Turn to Page 5, Col. 4

Pollard Triggers Crash, Then Comes on to Win Mays '150'

By BOB GREENE
MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Starting from the back of the pack after a 13-car smash-up on the first lap, Art Pollard won the 150-mile Rex Mays Memorial classic Sunday with a record average speed of 112.157 miles an hour.

Ironically, it was Pollard who triggered the spectacular crash when his transmission broke coming out of the No. 2 turn, causing his car to fishtail, graze an outside retaining wall and lock wheels with Lloyd Ruby's car.

The crash forced 11 entries out of the running. Two more returned to the track after undergoing extensive repairs.

Pollard, 42, whose car was too badly damaged to continue, took the wheel of another Andy Granatelli racer. Starting in last place, he worked up through the pack and took over the lead in the 90th lap on the one-mile State Fair Park oval.

Lonberg Wins Sixth Straight Yanks Sweep Twin Bill From Chisox

By MIKE RECHT

Good pitching, not Mickey Mantle Day, inspired the New York Yankees to play like the Yankees of old. And it also served as an inspiration for the new Seattle Pilots to play like the Pilots of old.

With many former great Yankees and the largest crowd in the majors this season—60,096—on hand to do honor to Mantle, the Yankees swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 3-1 and 11-2 Sunday.

But Manager Ralph Houk dismissed any thoughts that Mantle's presence had anything to do with the twin victories that boosted the Yankees to .500 for the first time since May 1.

"The inspiration comes when you get good pitching," Houk said, referring to Mel Stottlemyre's three-hitter and a six-hitter by rookie Bill Burbach.

The Pilots, however, have no glorious past or former stars like the Yankees, but for the first 49 games of their existence, they had compiled the remarkable record for an expansion team of having never been shut out.

Win Second

That ended Saturday when Jim Palmer of Baltimore blanked them, but the Pilots wasted little time returning to their good old ways, scoring five runs in the first inning Sunday en route to a 7-5 victory over the Orioles.

Jim Lonberg also continued to look like the pitcher he was in the past by hurling Boston to an 8-2 victory over Kansas City.

In other games, Washington beat Minnesota 7-5 in 12 innings and Cleveland blanked California 3-0 before losing 3-2. Oakland was rained out at Detroit.

Stottlemyre, 34, the best Yankee pitcher since the days of Mantle's prime years, gave up a run in the second inning, worked out of a bases loaded jam in the third and didn't allow a hit for the last six innings.

Joe Pepitone, resembling the sluggers who won pennants for the Yankees of yesteryear, supplied the power with his 13th homer of the season with two on in the fourth off loser Gerry Nyman, 2-2.

Minor Injuries

Gary Bettenhausen hit the rear of Wally Dallenbach's car, overturned several times, and crossed a 20-foot-wide moat and a retaining rail before halting in the infield. He walked away from his wrecked car with minor injuries.

Laver Defeats Ken Rosewall In French Meet

Mrs. Court Wins Women's Singles In Open Tourney

PARIS (AP) — Rod Laver and Mrs. Margaret Court, Australia's hottest tennis stars, left today for the grass courts of England and the next stage of their bid for a double Grand Slam.

They have won the singles titles in the Australian championships and the French championships, which finished at the Roland Garros Stadium Sunday.

Now they tackle the All-England Championships at Wimbledon, which starts in two weeks. The American Open Championships—the last of the year's Big Four events—are scheduled to start at Forest Hills, New York, Aug. 28.

Two men have pulled off the Grand Slam—Donald Budge in 1938 and Laver in 1962.

'Little Mo'

Only one woman player has done it—Maureen 'Little Mo' Connolly in 1953.

Laver, 30, has won $64,210 in prize money in 16 weeks of tournament play. Long recognized as supreme on fast surfaces, he mastered his old rival Ken Rosewall, the king of clay courts, for a decade, in straight sets in the final here.

Mrs. Court won the Women's crown Sunday by defeating Mrs. Ann Jones of Britain 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Laver said the Grand Slam is something a player might pull off once in a lifetime.

"So I'm not setting my sights on it," the little lefthander said.

The French championships were disappointing for the Americans. Arthur Ashe, Stan Smith and Cliff Richey all failed after reaching the last 16.

Nancy Richey of Dallas, who won the women's crown last year, lost to Mrs. Court in the semifinals.

25,000 U.S. Troops To Leave War Zone

their replacement as decisions are made."

In Washington, Pentagon sources said the 25,000 troops probably will get no closer home than Okinawa or Hawaii. From there they could be rushed back to Vietnam if needed.

Some officers at the Pentagon were surprised that more Americans weren't being pulled out. One source said there had been proposals to withdraw 50,000 or more men. The President was "being prudent," he added.

Nixon said decisions of future withdrawals would hinge on the readiness of South Vietnamese forces, progress in the Paris peace talks and the level of enemy activity.

White House sources had said earlier they believed a troop withdrawal made from a position of strength would promote progress in Paris.

Free Elections

The two presidents also subscribed to a declaration, put forward in a joint statement at the end of the conference, that presumably was designed to help get the negotiations moving.

"The two presidents confirmed their convictions that the form of government under which the people of South Vietnam will live should be decided by the people themselves. . . . They declared for their part they will respect any decision by the people of South Vietnam that is arrived at through free elections."

At the same time, they "reiterated their common resolve to reject any attempt to impose on the Republic of Vietnam any system or program or any particular form of government, such as coalition, without regard to the will of the people of South Vietnam."

Much of the speculation that Thieu labeled "not true" dealt with the assumption in some quarters that he would never accept any sort of coalition, a possibility opened in Nixon's eight-point peace plan of May 14.

However, the language of the joint statement was broad enough to encompass almost any interpretation.

The Nixon-Thieu statement also said:

"They agreed that the failure of the other side to achieve its objective should convince it of its inability to gain a victory by military means. They expressed the hope that the other side will realize the futility and danger of its effort and that it will accept a solution based on the principle of self-determination for the people of South Vietnam."

The two presidents said that "if the other side is genuinely interested in finding peace, it should be possible to create an atmosphere in South Vietnam in which all of the people of South Vietnam can participate in the light of a free, viable and prosperous state."

This seemed to underline Nixon's May 14 proposal that Communists be permitted a political voice in a postwar South Vietnam.

Strengthen Militia

In connection with the troop withdrawal announcement, the communiqué said Thieu asked Nixon for "additional assistance" in strengthening local military units that often have had a good record in fighting in defense of their home territory. The communiqué said the U.S. chief executive promised to give the request "sympathetic consideration."

Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird declared today President Nixon's decision to pull 25,000 troops out of Vietnam moves the "United States closer to peace."

Arriving from the joint U.S.-Vietnamese meeting at Midway, Laird said: "I believe we return closer to peace and we now have a program moving forward to change the role of United States forces in Vietnam and in Southeast Asia."

The defense chief said he believes the U.S. effort to give South Vietnam a bigger role in the war "will bear fruit" in the coming days.

Laird did not identify which units will be the first to leave the war zone. He said that will be decided Thursday by a joint service task force which is being assigned to prepare for the movement of withdrawing units in early July.

The pullout is expected to start with the withdrawal of several combat battalions or support-type forces.

The task force, to convene at the Pacific command in Hawaii, will include representatives of Laird's office and of each of the military services, and air and sea transport specialists.

On Capitol Hill, Democratic critics of the Vietnam war are calling President Nixon's troop withdrawal announcement inadequate, but Republicans in Congress generally see it as at least a step in the right direction.

Criticism similar to that of McCarthy and McGovern came from Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., who said that President Nixon's trip to Midway gave South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu "a leverage to which he is not entitled."

"The principal issue at the conference was whether to negotiate a political compromise which would permit not 25,000 American boys, but 540,000, to come home. From what we have heard so far, there is no indication that President Nixon has won a single major point."

"The choice at Midway was between the Nixon peace plan and the Thieu plan for prolonged war," Gore added. "The Thieu plan seems to have won hands down."

There was no immediate response from three other major Democratic antiwar critics: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the assistant Democratic leader from Massachusetts; Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Republicans had cautious praise.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said: "I hope this initial withdrawal of 25,000 U.S. troops serves to stimulate progress in the Paris peace talks."

Cancer Fatal to Actor Screen Lover Robert Taylor Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Taylor, leading man to many of the most glamorous stars in films during a career which spanned 35 years, is dead of cancer at 57.

The Nebraskan's dark good looks projected him to the top in 1935 opposite Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession" and Greta Garbo in "Camille."

During his career he was also billed with such names as Jean Harlow, Ava Gardner, Elizabeth Taylor, Myrna Loy, Joan Crawford, Hedy Lamarr, Lana Turner, Katharine Hepburn and Greer Garson—usually in sentimental films designed to appeal to women.

He was married to another star, Barbara Stanwyck, for 11 years.

In his biggest years, around 1940 to 1950, Taylor was one of the screen's highest paid actors. But he said he never planned it that way.

"I went into acting because it was the only job offered to me at the time," he said once. "It's not my sole interest in life, being an actor, but it's the only one that made me any money."

He threw himself vigorously into his other interests: flying, hunting, fishing and ranching. Before he died of lung cancer Sunday, Taylor had been in and out of the hospital seven times in nine months. He spent the rest of the time at his 113-acre suburban ranch, where he raised quarter horses and chickens.

Heavy Smoker

A spokesman said Taylor knew his disease, discovered late last year, was terminal. The 170-pound 6-footer quit smoking cigarettes in October before most of a lung was removed because of what was then described as a fungus infection called valley fever. He had been a three-pack-a-day man who said he "smoked since I was a kid."

Taylor was under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio from 1934 to 1958—a Hollywood record for a star—graduating from pretty-boy roles as his face creased and his wavy dark hair thinned.

From 1959 to 1962 he played a tough cop on the television series "The Detective." Since 1966 he had appeared on the "Death Valley Days" show.

Born in Nebraska

Taylor was born Aug. 6, 1911, in Filley, Neb., the son of a grain dealer who later became a doctor. He enjoyed recalling his youth there and in Beatrice, Neb., where theater marquees announced his first movies with his real name: "Starring Spangler Arlington Brugh."

At Pomona College near Los Angeles, Taylor joined the drama club and a year after graduation signed an MGM contract for $35 a week.

Teamsters Unanimous In Endorsing Contract gravel firms comprising the association continued to operate during the strike and successfully pressed unfair labor charges against the unions.

All Teamsters were instructed to report for work today. Those non-union employees who were hired during the strike will be replaced unless employers have need for their services in addition to the returning Teamsters.

"The settlement was in line with Teamsters policy throughout the industry," remarked Schlieve. "We are satisfied that it is fair and equitable and feel it was unfortunate that it couldn't be reached without a strike."

Both sides made some concessions — one on money and the other on contract language.

The union dropped the weekly earnings guarantee that had been in effect for 75 per cent of the employees who worked in any week, while the association made an upward revision in the call-in rate and also established premium pay for hours worked before 7 a.m. and after 5 p.m.

"To the employer group the critical issue was the elimination of the weekly guarantee," another association representative said. "When the Teamsters agreed to eliminate the weekly guarantee, they broke the logjam and made the settlement possible."

Schlieve said the new contract spoke for itself.

Reportedly, the Teamsters submitted a proposal on July 27, 1968, which called for $2.50 over a five-year period, plus other considerations.

While both sides had legal and tactical moves at their disposal, and appeared to have exercised them, one of the factors attributed to the settlement was a recent contract the Teamsters negotiated with a leading area ready mix and construction firm not in the association. Most other Valley groups settled last year.

Although the Teamsters have settled, the Operating Engineers remain off the job. Joseph Goetz, Milwaukee, business agent for the statewide Local 139, said the Engineers were still engaged in contract talks with the association and looked for a settlement in the near future.

However, Goetz said the Operating Engineers "reserved the right" to picket job sites throughout the region where they normally would operate major equipment.

In a related development, the National Labor Relations Board denied an appeal of Locals 563 and 139, along with Carpenters and Joiners Local 3203, of a trial examiners decision of Feb. 4, 1969.

The unions were found to have committed unfair labor practices in connection with the U. S. 41-W College Avenue overpass at Appleton and other projects in the area. The NLRB ordered them to "cease and desist" from illegal secondary picketing.

With work resumed on the U. S. 41 project, the question of the district federal court at Milwaukee issuing a restraining order against the unions, requested recently by the NLRB on behalf of the association, becomes mute.

Admiral Silent on Ships' Troubles

Carrier Commander Appears at U. S.-Australian Collision Inquiry

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — Australian Adm. G. J. B. Crabb refused to say today whether there had been any communications difficulties between the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne and the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans before the carrier sliced the destroyer in two.

Crabb was asked by a joint U.S.-Australian board investigating the collision whether communication troubles had arisen on June 3. He said he preferred not to answer the question.

The two ships collided early that morning during maneuvers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization off the coast of South Vietnam. Crabb, commander of the Australian fleet, was aboard the carrier commanding the task force that included the Melbourne and the Evans.

74 Killed

Seventy-four of the Evans' crew members were killed. There were no casualties aboard the carrier.

Crabb told the board he was awakened three minutes before the collision and told the destroyer and the carrier were on "a collision course."

By the time he reached the bridge, he said, the nose of the Evans was directly in front of the Melbourne less than 40 feet away and "moving right to left in my vision."

Within seconds the Melbourne plowed through the Evans. It was a "ghastly sight," Crabb said. "I could see the Evans clearly, vividly. I didn't see any men on the deck of the Evans. That surprised me."

Standard Procedure

Crabb told the board it was standard procedure in the Australian navy for escort destroyers to turn away from a carrier when changing direction.

"It is a basic rule," he said. "I have told my officers I would sack any man who turned in."

Earlier, the admiral revealed that the Melbourne narrowly missed ramming another ship three days before she and the Evans collided.

He told the board that "another ship passed within 50 feet—50 feet—of the Melbourne" early on the morning of May 31. He termed the incident a "near collision."

Crabb did not name the other ship, but informed sources said

Moving Ahead

The carrier's commanding officer, Capt. J. P. Stevenson, said in a statement last week that the Evans had been ordered to move from ahead of the carrier to astern of her and "it was in the course of this maneuver that the collision occurred."

The joint inquiry opened today with three U.S. Navy officers and three from the Australian navy on the board. U.S. Rear Adm. Jerome H. King Jr. is the senior member. Navy officials said they believed it was the first such two-nation inquiry in naval history.

Adm. Crabb was the only witness before the board adjourned for a flight tonight to Singapore, where the Melbourne is docked for repairs. Sources said the board would inspect the carrier and return to Subic Bay Tuesday.

Navy spokesmen said more than 30 witnesses—and possibly many more—will appear before the investigating board. A key witness will be Lt. (j.g.) Ronald Ramsey, 24, who was in charge on the bridge of the Evans at the time of the collision. The ship's captain and executive officer were asleep in their bunks.

Medina's Jerry Smith Wins KK Feature After Duel With Regeth

BY TOM VERHAGEN

KAUKAUNA — Jerry Smith of Medina in a '67 Plymouth, staged a see-saw, bumper-to-bumper, 13-lap battle with Appleton's Roger Regeth before going on to win the 40-lap feature event Saturday night at the KK Sports Arenas half-mile high-banked track.

Regeth, in a '67 Plymouth, snarled an early lead after the green flag was displayed and appeared headed for an easy victory.

Smith climbed into second place on the eighth lap and set his sights on the orange No. 17 that was setting a fast pace. After a number of tries, Smith was finally able to slide high into the No. 4 turn and with a slight tug of the steering wheel, get by Regeth on the inside after 21 laps had gone by.

The driver from Medina, who placed ninth in the June 1 USAC race, then opened up a 10 to 15 car length lead over Regeth (third place finisher in the 100-miler) and guided his Mike Randerson tuned auto to victory for the first time on KK's half-mile track.

Parnkratz Third

Following Smith and Regeth across the finish line were Ken Parnkratz of Mosinee, in a '69 Ford Torino; J. J. Smith, of Appleton, in a '67 Ford; Marlin Walbeck of Rib Lake and Rich Somers of Stevens Point.

Medina's Smith also won the 6-lap trophy dash with Regeth second, J. J. Smith third and Walbeck fourth.

The first heat was won by Bob Kleinschmidt of Oshkosh in a '67 Ford LTD, with Bob Dalsky of Wausau second and Stu Nitzke of Berlin and Tom Van Dree of West DePere third and fourth respectively.

Regeth won the second follow-up by Smith of Medina, Walbeck and Ev Fox of Sparta, in a '68 Chevelle.

Taking the checkered flag at the conclusion of the third heat was Somers, followed by Kleinschmidt and Kimberly's Clyde Schumacher in a '67 Ford. Fast time for the evening went to Jerry Smith, of Medina, with a time of 22.77 seconds.

A 50-lap feature race will highlight next Saturday night's racing card, along with a $3,150 guaranteed purse.

Winner of the 10-lap, figure-8 event was Wayne Kruse, of Kaukauna.

Ken Nimmers Cops Feature At 141 Track

Ken Nimmers, Appleton and Willie Schoppenhorst, Berlin, staged a neck-an-neck battle all the way with Nimmers finally edging a victory in the feature at stock car races held at the Highway 141 Speedway near Manitowoc Sunday.

Arnie Olp, Hilbert, won the semi-feature and fast time for the day was turned in by Nimmers with 14:15.

Butch Schultz, Manitowoc, finished third in the feature. In the semi, Greg Martell, Manitowoc, was second to Olp and Allen Averag, Mishicot, placed third.

Dow Miller, Jr., Kaukauna, won the first heat with Olp second and Arnie Mott, Branch, third. Ron Van Roy, Appleton, took the second heat with Schoppenhorst runnerup and Erv Schmude, Neenah, third.

Schmude won the third heat. Nimmers was second and Olp placed third. Schoppenhorst took the fourth heat with Van Roy in second place and Schultz, third.

Next competition for drivers from the Fox Valley Racing Association will be Tuesday at Oshkosh, with time trials at 7 p.m. and races at 8 p.m.

Pockets $26,000 Billy Casper Wins Western Open Title

By BOB GREEN

MIDLOTHIAN, Ill. (AP) — Buffalo Billy Casper set his sights on a third United States Open golf championship today, his confidence bubbling, his game in great shape and his troublesome allergy problems subsiding.

"This sets me up very well for the Open," the one-time fat man said Sunday after shooting a brilliant, four-under-par 67 and winning the $26,000 first prize in the Western Open by four strokes on the water-logged Midlothian Country Club course.

"I'm driving the ball very well, and long for me," the 37-year-old master said. "I hit a lot of good irons. And it gives you a great deal of confidence to roll in some putts like I did." "Does winning this one make you the man to beat in the Open?" someone asked.

Billy laughed. "Sure, if..." he said. "If I continue to drive the ball well, hit my irons real good, chip well and can drop some long putts, well, I'll be pretty hard to beat."

That formula, near-perfect golf, was his combination in winning his third Western title, one of the most prestigious in the country and second in age only to U.S. Open, which will be played this week in Houston.

Pools, Puddles

A steady, 18-hour rain lifted midway through Casper's round, but left the 6,654-yard course a series of pools and puddles.

"When I teed off, I was surprised we were playing," Casper said.

Casper, who won his 43rd tour victory, pushed his career money winnings to $957,000. He finished with a 72-hole total of 276, four strokes in front of long-shot Rocky Thompson, in second with a 69 for 280.

Third-round leader Frank Beard fell to a 74 for 281 and third place, followed by England's Peter Townsend, 72 for 283. They were the only men to beat par for the tournament.

South African Gary Player, 72, was one of five at par 284. PGA champ Julius Boros had a 72 for 285; Masters champ George Archer 73 for 287, U.S. Open champ Lee Trevino a 73 for 288, defending champion Jack Nicklaus a 73 for 291.

Casper, winner of the Bob Hope Desert Classic early this year, but playing relatively poorly in recent weeks, said he may have solved some of the allergy problems that have plagued him.

Jim Mulhall Killed During Colorado Race

Dick Simon Wins Grand Prix for Formula A Cars

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Dick Simon, making only his third start in a Lola T-142, took the lead in the 22nd lap Sunday and won the Formula A Colorado Grand Prix at the Continental Divide Raceway.

The scheduled 40-lap race was shortened to 27 laps following the death of Jim Mulhall, 27, Littleton, Colo., during the 25th lap.

Witnesses said Mulhall hit a patch of water shortly after entering the straightaway in front of the viewing stands and went into a spin.

The open-wheeled vehicle hit a retaining wall composed of water-filled, 50-gallon barrels and threw them into the pit area injuring three men, two of them critically.

In critical condition in Swedish Hospital in Englewood were Jack Barker, 36, and Michael DesJardins, 33, both Denver mechanics. A spectator, Roy Grange, 33, Boulder, Colo., was treated at the hospital and released.

It was the first fatal accident in the 11-year history of the raceway located between Denver and Colorado Springs.

Sam Posey, Sharon, Conn., finished second in A Classic Wax Special and Bud Morley of Denver, driving a Lola T-142, was third. Seven Lolas were among the top 10 finishers.

The victors scored on a hit batsman and an error in the fifth inning while Steinhauer's teammates enforced him with only two hits.

In other sectional - concluding action, Kenosha Tremper defeated Janesville Parker 4-1 at Oconomowoc, Fond du Lac downed Beaver Dam 4-0, Menomoneie stopped Eau Claire Memorial 4-2 in the Alma sectional, and Superior won 4-2 over sectional host Hayward.

The pairings for Thursday's state meet are:

Sauk Prairie vs. Waupaca, Menomoneie vs. Superior, Fond du lac vs. Madison East and Antigo vs. Kenosha Tremper.

Noppe Stars in Drag Program At KK Arena

KAUKAUNA (AP)—Bob Noppe of Rock Island, Ill., won the super eliminator event Sunday at the KK Sports Arena, turning the quarter mile in 163 miles an hour with an elapsed time of 8.49 seconds.

That was a tenth of a second better than a national record, but can't be recognized as such because of the absence of several factors, including a back-up run.

Jon Hansen of Milwaukee had the day's top speed of 184 m.p.h. in :8.13.

The superstock winner was Noel Cramer of Random Lake in 118.23 m.p.h. and :12.23, and Sap Severson of Fond du Lac won the street eliminator in 111.66 m.p.h. and :12.13.

Teamsters Strike Ends

5-Year Pact Gains Unanimous Approval; Engineers Still Out

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The longest and most expensive strike in Fox Cities history ended Sunday afternoon and Teamsters reported back to work today at ready mix concrete firms with a $2.85 wage and fringe package under their bells.

Wage increases and additional fringe benefits are spread out over the life of a five-year contract the seven-member Fox Valley Contractor Material Suppliers Association signed with Teamsters Local 563.

It had been predicted, following several hours of mediation

last week, that agreement would be reached over the weekend to end the 10-month walkout which delayed highway and other major construction in the region.

Terms of the settlement just about double the pay scales existing in the former three-year contract that expired May 1, 1968.

The Teamsters and members of Local 139 of the Operating Engineers struck the association on July 28, 1968.

Operating Engineers, who still are in negotiations with the association, remained off the job.

About 175 Teamsters met at the Labor Hall Sunday morning and unanimously endorsed the new pact after it was outlined by Robert Schlieve, secretary-treasurer and chief negotiator for Local 563.

Over the five-year length of the new contract — extending from May 1, 1968, to May 1, 1973 — hourly wages of dump truck drivers will rise to $5.87 from the present $3.27; mechanics to $6.25 from $3.57; concrete plant operators (weight batchers) to $6.15 from $3.37, and ready-mix and semi-truck drivers to $6.05 from $3.37.

Over $1 Million Total impact of pay and fringe benefit increases during the life of the contract has been estimated at over $1 million.

The wage increments, with slight variation for dump truck drivers, include 55 cents for 1968; 65 cents, May 1, 1969; 35 cents, Dec. 1, 1969; 55 cents, May 1, 1970; 30 cents, May 1, 1971; 25 cents, Dec. 1, 1971; 30 cents, May 1, 1972; and 28 cents, Dec. 1, 1972.

Weekly pension contribution of employers will be $6 to $8 retroactive to May 1, 1969; $8 to $9 on May 1, 1970; and $9 to $10 as of May 1, 1971.

Other fringes include three weeks' vacation after 10 years' service beginning in 1970, a seventh paid holiday and increased health and welfare benefits.

The lengthy and sometimes bitter dispute triggered a series of vandalism and unfair labor charges and counter charges. After the strike extended into this spring, it was obvious both sides were at a standoff.

Officially, the strike ended at 1:05 p.m. Sunday when Schlieve and attorney Joseph Meli, Madison, representing the association, ironed out the final language and signed the new agreement.

The stage for the settlement, which might have an effect on wage rates paid in other Fox Valley communities, was set in recent weeks through the efforts of Don Lee, Madison, a mediator with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission.

May Be Vulnerable Because Teamster Locals in Fond du Lac-Oshkosh, Sheboygan and Green Bay have a parity clause geared to the wage rates of Local 563 at Appleton, ready mix concrete firms in those areas may find themselves vulnerable to contract reopeners.

"Negotiators for the association and union worked constantly most of last week to push for the settlement," a source said.

While the association had held firm during the long strike, so did the Teamsters and Operating Engineers in their picketing.

Local 563, according to Teamsters officials, had "the complete support" of the International Union, Central States Conference and Wisconsin Joint Council from the outset to the settlement of the strike.

Three years ago the Teamsters and association had a similar dispute but the strike then lasted only during the summer.

Sunday's settlement came at a time when construction would normally be shifted into high gear throughout the region.

Nixon, Thieu in Harmony, Agree to Pull 25,000 GIs

Further Withdrawals Apparently Planned

BY FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

MIDWAY ISLAND (AP) — President Nixon's first move to pare down the United States troop commitment in Vietnam — by 25,000 men as a start — was followed Sunday night by a strong affirmation of Washington-Saigon solidarity. The harmony declaration came from President Nguyen Van Thieu in off-the-cuff remarks to newsmen following his summit meeting with Nixon on tiny, mid-Pacific Midway Island.

Referring to advance speculation that there might be serious differences between the United States and the Saigon government over ways and means to promote the search for peace, Thieu said with emphasis: "This is not true. . . . We have a very close understanding on that."

Following five hours of talks, most of them with only one key adviser sitting beside each chief executive, Nixon returned to Honolulu for an overnight stay and Thieu flew back to Saigon.

Thieu expressed satisfaction with Nixon's decision to withdraw 25,000 American troops from his country, with all indications pointing to further withdrawals.

He called it "good news for the American people" and declared:

"We will do our best from now on to alleviate the burden of the American people."

It seemed evident the American delegation at Midway hoped the move would help defuse the homefront criticism of Nixon's Vietnam policy.

McCarthy Critical But Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., said he didn't "see that this is any significant indication of any program to try and resolve or end the war."

And Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., commented: "I can't see where this represents any significant shift of American policy. . . . I think we ought to begin taking them all out, and the faster the better, as far as I am concerned."

In his announcement, Nixon said:

"President Thieu informed me that the progress of the training program and the equipment program for South Vietnamese forces had been so successful that he could now recommend that the United States begin to replace U.S. combat forces with Vietnamese forces."

"As a consequence of the recommendation by the president and the assessment of our own commander in the field, I have decided to order the immediate redeployment from Vietnam of a division equivalent of approximately 25,000 men."

Starts in 30 Days "This troop replacement will begin within the next 30 days and will be completed by the end of August. . . . I will announce plans for further withdrawals."

Kennedy Sees No Opposition

Burger OK Likely Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate may usher in a new judicial era with confirmation today of Warren E. Burger as chief justice of the United States.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen attempted to speed the confirmation last Thursday, but this was called off because printed copies of Burger's testimony before the Judiciary Committee were not ready. The reports were available today.

Although his appointment was cheered loudly by conservative Republicans and Democrats as portending a new trend on the high court, Burger has said he will not be a captive of either conservatives or liberals.

His credo, as he puts it, is that every case has to stand on individual merits. He says he regards his opinions during the 13 years on the Circuit Court as far more liberal than the conservatives like to think they are.

On the other hand, Burger has asserted his dedication to a much stricter interpretation of the Constitution than the Warren Court followed in some cases.

Restraint Balance Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., told Burger that he reads the nominee's appeals court opinions as favoring a restraint and balance between the rights of the accused and society itself in the handling of criminal suspects. Warren Court decisions in many such cases aroused angry criticism in the Senate.

Burger pleased nearly all Judiciary Committee members by saying the Supreme Court has no power to legislate or to amend the Constitution — charges critics have voiced against Warren's direction of the court.

The 61-year-old judge indicated he will sever connections with non-judicial organizations. He listed six organizations to which he belongs, including the Mayo Foundation which has paid him $6,000 in fees as a trustee.

Foundations are a sensitive issue because of the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas after it was disclosed he had accepted a $20,000 fee from the family foundation of Louis E. Wolfson, a financier now serving a prison term.

Burger, a former Republican chairman of his native state of Minnesota, knows his way around politics. He was credited with helping swing Minnesota's deciding votes to Dwight D. Eisenhower when the latter defeated the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952. He served as an assistant attorney general in the Eisenhower administration.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — three hours, ending Sunday night with no further talk sessions scheduled.

Management's offer had been for an hourly wage increase of 57 cents spread over two years. The basic wage under a contract which expired May 31 was $3.89 an hour.

Except for some unauthorized walkouts, and a 95-day walkout by mechanics which did not interrupt production last year, the breweries have had no serious work stoppages since a 76-day strike which virtually wiped out the supply of Milwaukee-brewed beer in 1953.

Bank Boosts Its Prime Rate To 8½ Per Cent

Others Expected To Follow Increase To New Record High

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the major banks in New York today raised its prime rate—the interest it charges its biggest and best customers for loans—to a historic high of 8½ per cent from 7½, effective immediately.

An increase had been expected for some time, but the amount of the increase—a full one per cent — was surprising. The increase by Bankers Trust Co. of New York was announced without comment.

When one bank increases the prime rate, others usually follow.

The prime rate is used in determining the interest rate charged most large corporations. Other rates, such as interest rates to consumers, are scaled upward from the prime rate.

Series of Increases The old rate of 7½ per cent was a record high when it was set on March 17. As recently as last Dec. 2 the rate was 6¼.

A series of rate increases, usually one-fourth or one-half of a per cent at a time, had occurred between December and March.

The Federal Reserve Board has taken a number of steps to make it more expensive and more difficult for banks to borrow money. But the demand on banks for money to borrow has continued strong.

By raising the prime rate banks can afford to pay more for the money they borrow.

One banker said privately that "It's safe to say all of the big banks will sit down today and take a look at things after Bankers Trust's move."

All From Milwaukee Suburb

9 Killed as Blaze Sweeps Oneida County Cabin

THREE LAKES, Wis. (AP) — The Oneida County sheriff's office said nine persons apparently died in a fire that swept a log cabin on Virgin Lake today. Seven bodies were recovered and authorities said they were searching for two more. Officers said it was known that nine persons had arrived at the cabin Sunday.

No identifications were released, but authorities said the occupants were from the Milwaukee suburb of St. Francis. At least three of the victims were children.

The cottage was in the town of Three Lakes on Virgin Lake. The alarm was turned in by a passerby but by the time Three Lakes firemen arrived, the structure was nearly leveled.

The sheriff's department said it was checking ownership of the cottage to determine who had been in the house overnight.

Another body was found in the ruins hours later but it was not known at once if it was that of a human.

The passerby turned in the alarm in at 5:15. The roof of the log cabin had collapsed into the fiery interior when the firemen came on the scene.

their replacement as decisions are made."

In Washington, Pentagon sources said the 25,000 troops probably will get no closer home than Okinawa or Hawaii. From there they could be rushed back to Vietnam if needed.

Some officers at the Pentagon were surprised that more Americans weren't being pulled out. One source said there had been proposals to withdraw 50,000 or more men. The President was "being prudent," he added.

Nixon said decisions of future withdrawals would hinge on the readiness of South Vietnamese forces, progress in the Paris peace talks and the level of enemy activity.

White House sources had said earlier they believed a troop withdrawal made from a position of strength would promote progress in Paris.

Free Elections
The two presidents also subscribed to a declaration, put forward in a joint statement at the end of the conference, that presumably was designed to help get the negotiations moving.

"The two presidents confirmed their convictions that the form of government under which the people of South Vietnam will live should be decided by the people themselves. They declared for their part they will respect any decision by the people of South Vietnam that is arrived at through free elections."

At the same time, they reiterated their common resolve to reject any attempt to impose on the Republic of Vietnam any system or program or any particular form of government, such as coalition, without regard to the will of the people of South Vietnam."

Much of the speculation that Thieu labeled "not true" dealt with the assumption in some quarters that he would never accept any sort of coalition, a possibility opened in Nixon's eight-point peace plan of May 13.

However, the language of the joint statement was broad enough to encompass almost any interpretation.

The Nixon-Thieu statement also said:

"They agreed that the failure of the other side to achieve its objective should convince it of its inability to gain a victory by military means. They expressed the hope that the other side will realize the futility and danger of its effort and that it will accept a solution based on the principle of self-determination for the people of South Vietnam."

The two presidents said that "if the other side is genuinely interested in finding peace, it should be possible to create an atmosphere in South Vietnam in which all of the people of South Vietnam can participate in the light of a free, viable and prosperous state."

This seemed to underline Nixon's May 14 proposal that Communists be permitted a political voice in a postwar South Vietnam.

Strengthen Militia
In connection with the troop withdrawal announcement, the communique said Thieu asked Nixon for "additional assistance" in strengthening local military forces—the militia units that often have had a good record in fighting in defense of their home territory. The communique said the U.S. chief executive promised to give the request "sympathetic consideration."

Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird declared today President Nixon's decision to pull 25,000 troops out of Vietnam moves the United States "closer to peace."

Arriving from the joint U.S.-Vietnamese meeting at Midway, Laird said: "I believe we return closer to peace and we now have a program moving forward to change the role of United States forces in Vietnam and in Southeast Asia."

The defense chief said he believes the U.S. effort to give South Vietnam a bigger role in the war "will bear fruit" in the coming days.

Laird did not identify which units will be the first to leave the war zone. He said that will be decided Thursday by a joint service task force which is being assigned to prepare for the movement of withdrawing units in early July.

The pullout is expected to start with the withdrawal of several combat battalions or support-type forces.

The task force, to convene at the Pacific command in Hawaii, will include representatives of Laird's office and of each of the military services, and air and sea transport specialists.

On Capitol Hill, Democratic critics of the Vietnam war are calling President Nixon's troop withdrawal announcement inadequate, but Republicans in Congress generally see it as at least a step in the right direction.

Criticism similar to that of McCarthy and McGovern came from Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., who said that President Nixon's trip to Midway gave South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu "a leverage to which he is not entitled."

"The principal issue at the conference was whether to negotiate a political compromise which would permit not 25,000 American boys, but 540,000, to come home. From what we have heard so far, there is no indication that President Nixon has won a single major point."

"The choice at Midway was between the Nixon peace plan and the Thieu plan for prolonged war," Gore added. "The Thieu plan seems to have won hands down."

There was no immediate response from three other major Democratic antiwar critics: Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the assistant Democratic leader from Massachusetts; Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Republicans had cautious praise.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said: "I hope this initial withdrawal of 25,000 U.S. troops serves to stimulate progress in the Paris peace talks."

Cancer Fatal to Actor

Screen Lover Robert Taylor Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Taylor, leading man to many of the most glamorous stars in films during a career which spanned 35 years, is dead of cancer at 57.

The Nebraskan's dark good looks projected him to the top in 1935 opposite Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession" and Greta Garbo in "Camille."

During his career he was also billed with such names as Jean Harlow, Ava Gardner, Elizabeth Taylor, Myrna Loy, Joan Crawford, Hedy Lamarr, Lana Turner, Katharine Hepburn and Greer Garson—usually in sentimental films designed to appeal to women.

He was married to another star, Barbara Stanwyck, for 11 years.

In his biggest years, around 1940 to 1950, Taylor was one of the screen's highest paid actors. But he said he never planned it that way.

"I went into acting because it was the only job offered to me at the time," he said once. "It's not my sole interest in life, being an actor, but it's the only one that made me any money."

He threw himself vigorously into his other interests: flying, hunting, fishing and ranching.

Before he died of lung cancer Sunday, Taylor had been in and out of the hospital seven times in nine months. He spent the rest of the time at his 113-acre suburban ranch, where he raised quarter horses and chickens.

Robert Taylor

Heavy Smoker

A spokesman said Taylor knew his disease, discovered late last year, was terminal. The 170-pound 6-footer quit smoking cigarettes in October before most of a lung was removed because of what was then described as a fungus infection called valley fever. He had been a three-pack-a-day man who said he "smoked since I was a kid."

Taylor was under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio from 1934 to 1958—a Hollywood record for a star—graduating from pretty-boy roles as his face creased and his wavy dark hair thinned.

From 1959 to 1962 he played a tough cop on the television series "The Detective." Since 1966 he had appeared on the "Death Valley Days" show.

Born in Nebraska

Taylor was born Aug. 6, 1911, in Filley, Neb., the son of a grain dealer who later became a doctor. He enjoyed recalling his youth there and in Beatrice, Neb., where theater marquees announced his first movies with his real name: "Starring Spangler Arlington Brugh."

At Pomona College near Los Angeles, Taylor joined the drama club and a year after graduation signed an MGM contract for $35 a week.

Some of his most popular pictures were "Georgeous Hussy" with Joan Crawford, 1936; "A Yank at Oxford," 1937; "Johnny Eager," 1941; "Quo Vais" with Deborah Kerr, 1950; and "Ivanhoe" with Elizabeth Taylor, 1951.

Holder of a civilian pilot's license, he was a Navy flying instructor and directed training films during World War II.

Two Children

His marriage to Miss Stanwyck ended in 1951, when she divorced him, charging mental cruelty. They had no children.

Three years later Taylor married a German actress, Ursula Thiess, who was with him at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica when he died. They had a son, Terence, in 1955, and a daughter, Tessa, in 1959.

"You miss an awful lot of people that just aren't here anymore," he told an interviewer while making a film in 1966. "You kind of feel you should see Gable walking around a corner—or Harlow or Crawford."

The funeral will be Wednesday at the Forest Lawn Church of the Reformation in nearby Glendale. Gov. Ronald Reagan, a friend whom Taylor replaced on "Death Valley Days," will deliver the eulogy.

Admiral Silent on Ships' Troubles

Carrier Commander Appears at U. S.-Australian Collision Inquiry

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP)—Australian Adm. G. J. B. Crabb refused to say today whether there had been any communications difficulties between the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne and the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans before the carrier sliced the destroyer in two.

Crabb was asked by a joint U.S.-Australian board investigating the collision whether communication troubles had arisen on June 3. He said he preferred not to answer the question.

The two ships collided early that morning during maneuvers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization off the coast of South Vietnam. Crabb, commander of the Australian fleet, was aboard the carrier commanding the task force that included the Melbourne and the Evans.

74 Killed

Seventy-four of the Evans' crew members were killed. There were no casualties aboard the carrier.

Crabb told the board he was awakened three minutes before the collision and told the destroyer and the carrier were on "a collision course."

By the time he reached the bridge, he said, the nose of the Evans was directly in front of the Melbourne less than 40 feet away and "moving right to left in my vision."

Within seconds the Melbourne plowed through the Evans. It was a "ghastly sight," Crabb said. "I could see the Evans clearly, vividly. I didn't see any men on the deck of the Evans. That surprised me."

Standard Procedure

Crabb told the board it was standard procedure in the Australian navy for escort destroyers to turn away from a carrier when changing direction.

"It is a basic rule," he said. "I have told my officers I would sack any man who turned in."

Earlier, the admiral revealed that the Melbourne narrowly missed ramming another ship three days before she and the Evans collided.

He told the board that "another ship, passed within 50 feet—50 feet—of the Melbourne" early on the morning of May 31. He termed the incident a "near collision."

Crabb did not name the other ship, but informed sources said it was the U.S. destroyer Everett F. Larson.

Moving Ahead

The carrier's commanding officer, Capt. J. P. Stevenson, said in a statement last week that the Evans had been ordered to move from ahead of the carrier to astern of her, and "it was in the course of this maneuver that the collision occurred."

The joint inquiry opened today with three U.S. Navy officers and three from the Australian navy on the board. U.S. Rear Adm. Jerome H. King Jr. is the senior member. Navy officials said they believed it was the first such two-nation inquiry in naval history.

Adm. Crabb was the only witness before the board adjourned for a flight tonight to Singapore, where the Melbourne is docked for repairs. Sources said the board would inspect the carrier and return to Subic Bay Tuesday.

Navy spokesmen said more than 30 witnesses—and possibly many more—will appear before the investigating board. A key witness will be Lt. (j.g.) Ronald Ramsey, 24, who was in charge on the bridge of the Evans at the time of the collision. The ship's captain and executive officer were asleep in their bunks.

Lutherans Ordain, Install Willard Krueger

Ex-Milkman Seeks Souls for Fremont Parish

FREMONT — Ten years ago Willard Krueger was concerned about delivering milk in West Allis.

Today he's spreading the word that Zion Lutheran Church, route 1, is a country parish which intends to stay where it's been for 100 years to serve rural residents.

Krueger was ordained Sunday afternoon as a Lutheran clergyman and installed as pastor of Zion.

He is no stranger to its pulpit. Krueger has served the congregation as vicar for the past year, assuming the pastoral duties of the Rev. Dr. John Lucht, who retired last summer.

Country Church

During that year he has gained the conviction that Zion has a reason for existing, even though it is a small country church in a time when the value of such congregations is being questioned.

Krueger points out that there is no other parish of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod close to Zion except St. Paul in Fremont to the west.

"Lots of people in this area don't even know this church exists," he adds. "We need to publicize it."

He describes the 157-communicant parish as "still going strong." The membership includes a mixture of ages and occupations, with some members commuting to jobs in the Fox Cities.

Dual Parish

The 41-year-old new pastor feels that a dual-parish arrangement, with one pastor serving Zion and another small congregation, may be one way to keep the church open in future years.

The route from delivering milk in metropolitan Milwaukee 10 years ago to being pastor of a small, rural Waupaca County parish was filled with indecision and questioning which gave way to a new career and style of life at the age of 36.

It was in 1959 that Krueger quit his milkman's job to become an insurance salesman for Aid Association for Lutherans.

"I figured it was the closest I could get to church work," he recalls. "I was real happy but never fully satisfied."

"People would say to me, 'You should have been a pastor.' They wouldn't let me forget," he says.

Church Leader

Krueger was active at St. Paul Lutheran Church, West Allis, serving at various times as chairman of its board of elders, Sunday school teacher, adult Bible class teacher, head usher and on the board of education.

The Rev. Karl Barth, pastor of the congregation, kept on encouraging his member to consider the ministry.

In 1957, Krueger had written to Concordia Seminary, Springfield, Ill., only to be told that it felt his low C average in high school indicated he would have trouble academically in ministerial training.

"I can't point to any specific thing," Krueger says, but in February, 1964 he and Pastor Barth drove down to Springfield and found that the situation had changed.

He needed the equivalent of two years of college to enroll in a special training program.

The next day he enrolled at Concordia College, Milwaukee.

Completes Studies

After going part-time and then full-time to the junior college, the future pastor moved to Springfield in spring, 1965. He began the first of 36 straight months of courses which enabled him to complete three years' studies in two.

While studying at the seminary, Krueger's jobs included unloading trucks for a soft drink company.

He remembers that "we would work until we were done," sometimes until 3:30 a.m. The last year he was in charge of the night loading crew.

The effort was a family affair. Krueger's wife helped support the family of five with a job.

The couple's children — Sharon, 17; Wendy, 16, and Mark, 11 — were rather shocked by the sudden change in their father's occupation, but they were willing to change homes and schools several times as they moved.

Sharon admits she was "so shocked" when she found out her father had decided to study for the ministry, but adds, "It really didn't bother me too much."

Is there any difference between being a pastor's daughter and a layman's daughter?

"At school they watch what they say," Wendy notes.

Mark thinks the decision was "Okay. I can do more fishing out here."

Couple Happy

Both partners in the 19-year marriage were raised in the country and are happy to be back — even though they didn't know where Fremont was when the call was received.

"I wasn't too enthusiastic about the idea at first," Mrs. Krueger admits, "but for him it was the right thing."

Krueger also is sure that he did the right thing. He feels that his being a layman was an advantage, because a "nothing surprised me" when he came to Fremont.

He likes the fresh air and quietness of the country, too, plus the closeness of a small congregation. "I've never heard a congregation sing like this one," he notes with happiness.

A $2.9 Million nursing care building will be dedicated Saturday at the Grand Army Home for Veterans, King in honor of the late Maj. Gen. Ralph J. Olson. The building has five floors and contains 200 beds. Residents are cared for by a staff of 120 persons. The structure has been in use since July 16, 1968.

Senate Actions Approved

Watch Budget in Assembly, Alliance of Cities Warned

MADISON (AP)—Members of the Alliance of Cities should have no complaints about the 1969-71 state budget so far, but they should be ready to fight when it reaches the Assembly, the group was told Friday.

"The action in the Senate has been good so far," former Racine Mayor William H. Beyer, acting executive secretary of the alliance, said. There has been no shift of the tax load to local communities.

He praised Sen. Walter Hohlender, R-Rosendale, for his leading the forces behind a compromise budget—which restores many of the cuts made by the Joint Finance Committee.

Substitute Budget Beyer speculated there would be an attempt in the Assembly to substitute the Joint Finance Committee's recommended budget—which is more than $150 million less than the present level of the compromise budget now before the Senate.

"We better know where the danger points are, so we can get to work on them," he said. The alliance is composed of Wisconsin's largest cities. It was organized chiefly to win state support for problems of big cities.

Nine alliance members present Friday voted to support two amendments to the Tarr Task Force on local government's proposed distribution formula for state aids. They would make the plan more palatable to some alliance members.

One would include sewer service charges in the local government tax load for purposes of sharing in state property tax relief. The second would have the effect of including six more municipalities among those eligible for transitional payments to soften the impact of going in to the new formula.

As proposed, communities whose tax rates go up more than five per cent and exceed the statewide average as a result of the change in state aid would be eligible for extra dollars from Madison.

The amendment approved Friday would reduce the break off figure to 3 per cent at a cost to the state of $250,000 next year.

Vandals Attack Doomed School

NEW LONDON — McKinley School hadn't officially closed its doors before vandals "took it out" on the building constructed early this century.

Police said 27 windows and an outside light were smashed Friday night. Friday was the last day of school for students, however, teachers reporting Saturday found the vandalism.

Pieces of black top were used to smash the windows. Police Chief Jack Algiers warned youngsters to stay off the school grounds because the property would soon be owned by Red Owl Agency Stores.

Red Owl has executed an option to purchase the property and plans a new shopping center.

Tragic Ending Almost Mars Child's Game

NEW LONDON — A "follow the leader" game narrowly missed ending tragically Sunday afternoon in a vacant feed mill.

Julie Elliott, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Elliott, 121 E. Wolf River Ave., became separated from other youngsters while playing in the vacant New London Co-Op feed mill at Pearl and South Water streets.

Julie took a wrong turn inside the building and fell into a feed hopper when she lost her balance.

Other children summoned help about noon by calling the New London Police Department. The New London Fire Department Rescue squad and Cline-Hanson Ambulance were notified.

An older sister, Susan, tried to calm Julie while volunteers worked to free her. A chain saw was used to cut out a portion of the feed hopper so the girl could get out.

She was taken to Community Hospital where extensive X-rays were taken and she was diagnosed as suffering a concussion. Julie was held in the hospital for observation.

Rescue operations took less than 20 minutes.

This Friendly Little night marauder, Rickey, a very young raccoon, was found in a chimney at Waupaca and immediately sat in on a city council finance committee meeting. He was the guest of Mrs. Harriet Ward, city clerk. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Report Considers Future

Sewer Setups Good But Need Upgrading In Outagamie County

Sewer systems in Outagamie County communities appear to them "abreast" of the needs, be "in good shape" but will need upgrading within three years to meet the new state standards, a Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission study has revealed.

The report, representing two years of analysis of each community, points out five communities that need immediate sewer system improvements but adds that community officials are aware of this and working on the problem.

It is critical of improper sewer zoning control throughout the county and indicates a need for more planning in the location of new facilities in relation to terrain.

Thomas Obenberger, commission engineer-planner, will present the report Tuesday morning to the county board to "keep County communities abreast" of the needs.

However, he noted that individual communities will have to take the initiative to make the improvements to meet more stringent state standards by December, 1972.

The report offers population and land use projections through 1990 and shows rough cost estimates and needed sewer facilities to meet these anticipated changes.

"All prospering and growing communities will need improved sewer systems," Obenberger said. "We believe this report county and indicates a need for more planning in the location of new facilities in relation to terrain."

Obenberger noted that future water sources and needs also were included in the study but indicated he found no serious problems with water. However, he added that all possible efforts must be made to protect present water sources.

If the state legislature follows the referendum vote of April and bonds for $144 million for upgrading sewer systems, many communities may be able to acquire funding in the near future. This may be particularly important to communities that have been warned their facilities are far below par.

Obenberger said the report is at the printers now and should be ready in the near future.

Amendment Causes Dispute

Senate May Oppose House Limits For Farm Price Support Plan

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is little indication that the Senate will go along with a House-passed limit on government price support payments to individual farmers.

Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., is against the $20,000 limit tacked into a House appropriations bill to finance the Agriculture Department during fiscal 1969-70. He is chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee currently reviewing the department's money request for the coming year.

Although he says he did not support the Food and Agriculture Act now in effect, Holland said last week nevertheless he does not want "to see it emasculated" by the House payment lid.

Present Program

Thus, Agriculture Department officials are cautiously saying, the present farm program probably will remain undiluted another year—until the end of 1970 when it is supposed to die naturally.

But all sorts of horse-trading is possible. And if Senate proponents can generate enough steam the payment limitation could become a popular issue despite Holland's objections.

Direct farm payments last year totaled nearly $3.5 billion, most of it going to producers of cotton, feed grains and wheat in return for cooperating in government programs aimed at tailoring production to demand.

Administration View

Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin has dodged the question on whether the Nixon administration would want a limitation at all. He says—as he told Holland's subcommittee last week—that "it is possible to design a sound program that limits the number of dollars that can be paid to any one farmer for programs following the 1970 crop year."

In other words the Nixon administration prefers a hands-off policy until new farm legislation can be proposed, possibly by next fall.

Hardin uses the complicated cotton program as the main gun supporting the status quo.

Because of far-sighted authorship when the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 was written, cotton farmers would be sheltered from most of the shrapnel caused by the payment limitation bomb.

Costs Cited Consequently, Hardin has told both the House and Senate, costs of the cotton program actually would increase $160 million for the 1970 crop.

This year, without a limitation on payments, a grower has the option of planting all or part of his farm allotment. In return, the government guarantees him a price support loan of about 20 cents a pound.

If the farmer grows only 65 per cent of his allotted acres—

Planting Boosted

The remainder of the acreage would be idled at his own cost since the 1969 program permits no "diversion payment" for unused acres as in 1968. The idea this year was to encourage full planting and boost cotton production.

Therefore, a cotton grower now can get about 35 cents a pound for 65 per cent of his allotted production. If he planted his entire allotment acreage the remaining 35 per cent would be eligible only for the 20 cents a pound price support loan.

But under the farm act's "snapback" provision, if limitations are invoked farmers would be able to receive price support loans in one form or another equal to at least 65 per cent of the cotton parity price or roughly 32 cents a pound.

This would mean an incentive for planting the total allotted acreage since whatever a farmer grew would be eligible for the one price support rate.

Hardin says direct payments would be eliminated under the snap-back rule but that more cotton would be turned out, raising the cost of price support loan operations in 1970 to about $1,283,000,000 instead of $1,116,000,000 estimated for all benefits under the present system.

Telephone Company to Build Garage, Storage Facility

The Wisconsin Telephone Co. obtained a permit Thursday to construct a new $15,000 vehicle storage and service center at 311 W. Packard St.

It was one of several building projects announced today by Building Inspector Richard Atkins.

To be located on the old Frazier Lumber Co. property, the all masonry building is being erected by the Oscar J. Boldt Construction Co.

The new telephone company facility will have 16,300 square feet of storage space, according to plans approved by Atkins and the State Industrial Commission.

Wisconsin Telephone Co. previously had its vehicle storage building on W. Washington Street but sold it to the developer of the Gimbels Department Store project.

Other building permits were issued for:

— A storage building addition at the Appleton Works of the Allis Chalmers Co. in the "industrial flats." It will be a metal structure costing upwards of $12,000.

— Razing the existing Standard Oil Co. filling station at 111 W. Wisconsin Avenue and replacing it with a new $35,000 colonial-design facility.

— Construction of a $35,000 office at the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co. facility in the "industrial flats."

Good Samaritan Updated for Grads

WAUPACA — The parable of the Good Samaritan was fashioned into a way of happiness and fulfillment in the remaining years of the 20th century for 141 Waupaca High School seniors Sunday in their baccalaureate service.

"Your greatest joy will be your relations with other people," the Rev. A. S. Peterson, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church told the Class of 1969. "Tonight you are examining your consciences — what will life hold? War in Vietnam? A Job? College?" he asked. "Right now you may be in love with a special person, in love with the idea of furthering your education, in love with the freedom you anticipate as you leave your home, in love with excitement."

Your Life

"I must ask, 'What are you going to do with your life?'" he pressed. "Hard on the heels of this comes the other question, 'How are you going to relate to people?' Life is no vacuum, your greatest joy and fulfillment will be your relations with other people, sharing experiences, sharing love. Success or failure depends upon this. Your life will be full or empty. Full of disillusionment and misery, or full of meaning and joy."

Pastor Peterson's text was read by the Rev. Francis Foulke, United Methodist Church. It was the story of the man who lay on the road, attacked and bleeding, for he had been set upon by thieves. The priest and Levite passed him by — because they did not wish to be involved, the story goes.

But the Samaritan bound up his wounds, shared what he had with him, helped him get another start.

"You Must Love Me"

"With this parable we must forever remember what our Lord said, you must love Me with all your soul, heart, mind and strength and your neighbor as yourself," Peterson continued. "Do not go through life like the priest and the Levite, with utter disregard for those you meet, family, or friend. This world's troubles are set, in a personal and international way, by how men and women and nations use each other.

"Marriage has the greatest potential for happiness of any relationship you will experience. But if one partner uses the other only misery and tragedy result.

"The indifference is told about, eloquently, in one of your songs — 'Lonely is the Man without Love.' He also referred to another contemporary ballad — 'The Answer is Blown In The Wind.'"

Generation Gap

When parents lie bloody and frustrated on one side of life's road and children are beaten and bleeding on the other — this is what we know today as the generation gap," Peterson continued. "We look to you to take the risk of caring, take every opportunity you have and make a new relationship of it — giving of yourselves."

How do we do this?

"First, we know ourselves — find out what we are in relation to another human being," he concluded. "I will know what you are by the way you treat me and you can tell what I am by the way I treat you. When we know we are God's we will have the answer — for from this source comes the heart, the soul, the strength and the mind to treat your neighbor as yourself."

"This is the kind of person the last third of this century needs — there is a desperate need. No matter where you are or what you are doing — we are depending upon you."

The Rev. Harold Reentsma of First Baptist Church gave the invocation and the benediction.

The mixed chorus sang "Sing Praises and Hear My Prayer, O Lord."

The motto of this class, which will receive diplomas at 8 p.m. Thursday is, "Enter to Learn, Go Forth to Serve."

Governor Annoyed By Rumors Alleging An Early Retirement

AND TIM WYNGAARD

MADISON — Although there is not a fragment of evidence to support the story, Knowles continues to be annoyed by published rumors that he may not finish out his term.

Usually the rumor relates that he will take a national government appointment when his budget bill is finally enacted.

The best guess is that the story is kept alive by those who hope that he will retire, thus giving command of the state to Lt. Gov. Jack Olson who would be a better target for political attack in the view of some of the liberals who wishfully spread the Knowles retirement yarn.

The informed opinion in the capitol is, as repeated here months ago, that Knowles could only hurt his historical reputation by quitting and turning over his job to another who would then have a virtual guarantee of Republican endorsement and nomination in 1970. There is some tangible evidence to support the view, moreover, that the resignation story has been made up out of whole cloth. Knowles is now planning a South American trade mission which he will lead in the fall, and has said that he wants to head another to Australia and Southeast Asia in the spring of 1970.

A study by Republican state headquarters has provided a profile of the GOP county chairman of Wisconsin today.

His average age is 44 years. Typically he has served the party in other capacities before being chosen as the county leader. He is a business or a professional man. He has served in his job about two years.

This year 28 of the county chairmen elected. The dean of the 72 county party chieftains is Chairman Carl Hutchison of Crawford county, who has served since 1952.

For many years this state boasted about its comparatively low standing among the states of the country with respect to long term debt.

It boasted also that the state government itself was debt free. If such statements are rarely heard today, the reason is that Wisconsin is catching up with the country at large in terms of debt. The state and local per capita debt in Wisconsin for 1967, says the Legislative Reference Bureau, was slightly more than $428, against a national average of $579. Chances are that the state's comparative position has risen in the two years since the tabulations were made.

David Adamany, a former state official and Wisconsin politician now teaching at Wesleyan University in Connecticut, has published a paper on the essentially nonpartisan operation of the Wisconsin supreme court.

Although many of the men who reach the Wisconsin court have partisan backgrounds, evidence of partisan alignment on the court in decision making is nearly non-existent, he concludes, in contrast with the state of Michigan which also has an elective state supreme court but where there is far more tendency for judges to vote according to their previous ideological associations.

One of the curious facts about Wisconsin state finance, in a time of trouble in the legislature and in the administration about meeting public expenditure demands, is the dramatically low ranking of the state in the collection of federal aids and grants.

A late study shows that this state ranks 43rd out of the 50 states of the federal union in the ratio of federal grants to state and local general revenues. If the state received help from the federal treasury on the basis of population, per capita income, for example, it would rank around 20th among the states.

Only 16 men have served as chairman of the state voluntary Republican party organization since it was established as an anti-LaFollette vehicle in 1925. When the Republican state committee re-elected Ody Fish during the week, he became the second man to be chosen for three terms. Many persons assume that the late Thomas E. Coleman served longer. But the record shows that he had two terms. The contrary assumption relates to the fact that he held a variety of other prominent party assignments during his lifetime, including campaign fund raiser during the period when that was a difficult assignment.

One of the characteristics of James Wimmer, the chairman of the Democratic state organization for the last year who wants to be re-elected at the party's convention next week-end is unusual candor.

When Wimmer was several times seen pacing the corridors of the legislature recently, a reporter asked what he was doing.

"Building my fences," he replied unhesitatingly. Legislators, in both parties, faithfully attend party conventions and in most county delegations are likely to have a good deal of influence.

Cigarette vendors have virtually given up hope that they can stop legislation this year to increase the state tax on their product. Their effort will be to hold down the rate of increase. Bills are pending that would boost the tax rate from two to five cents. It is now 10 cents, and the federal government levies eight cents.

There is increasing curiosity about the failure of the senate highways committee, headed by Sen. Reuben LaFave of Oconto, to report out for confirmation the nomination of William Redmond for a new term on the state highway commission to which he was named by Gov. Knowles five months ago.

LaFave thus far has kept the nomination in his desk drawer, without even calling for a hearing.

The lack of action by the committee in reporting out the nomination for confirmation does not put Redmond in immediate peril. Under the law he can continue to serve legally, except as the governor might submit a new nomination, which nobody expects. But if the legislature should finally adjourn without action on the nomination, the new governor elected next year could submit a new nomination in 1971 if he chose to do so. Redmond, a former Wausau business executive, has taken up legal residence in Madison since his appointment.

Such delay won't affect the operation of the state government. The law is clear that agencies will continue with the level of spending authority they had this year. But employee group representatives are growing increasingly concerned. Their members had expected pay increases to go into effect on July 1. That now seems unlikely, although it is supposed that the legislature could make up the difference in the pay schedules by authorizing a delayed lump sum payment when the new budget finally becomes law.

One of the improvements in the housekeeping arrangements of the legislature in recent years for which its leadership deserves credit is the employment of bright, energetic and well-behaved youngsters as messengers and assistants to the clerks and the sergeants. In former decades such jobs — which are outside the civil service for all practical purposes — usually went to aging party hacks. The young men, and a few young women, em-

Board to Look at Necessary Repairs

NEW LONDON — A tour of the Washington School will be made at 7:30 p.m. today before the board of education meeting at 8 p.m. in the junior high school home economics room.

Board members will make the inspection to become acquainted with repair work outlined in a comprehensive, long-range plan for school district buildings.

The board is expected to set a July date for a public hearing on the 1969-70 school budget.

Anticipated Expenditures Expenditures of $1,832,059 are anticipated next year compared with $1,675,551 during the current year. A complete budget has not been established because a state aid formula and notification on the district's equalized value have not been received.

A committee of board members is expected to be named to study and propose revisions in the board's policy manual which governs board action and policy in regard to district operation.

Discussion will be held on the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association proposal for a new conference alignment.

New Conference

A revised WIAA conference proposal is New London, Waupaca, Berlin, Ripon, Winneconne, Omro, Hortonville and Weyauwega. The alignment is part of a statewide realignment being proposed by the WIAA.

Aug. 17 will be suggested as the date for an open house and dedication of the Park View Elementary School. Plans for the dedication program also will be made.

An advisory committee for vocational education programs is expected to be named. The State Vocational Education Department suggests districts have a committee for reviewing and suggesting vocational instruction.

In other business the board:

Plumbing Bids

— Will review plumbing bids for renovating rest rooms at Washington School.

— Set a policy for disposal of surplus property in the district. In past years a sale was conducted, but a large number of items this year may result in an auction.

— Act on approving drapes for Park View School and sidewalks and blacktopping at the school. Action also will be taken on authorizing Waupaca County to surface the area south of the senior high school.

— Execution of a deed selling the McKinley School property to Red Owl Agency Stores is anticipated. The school will vacate the building this spring.

Two New London Crashes; Tot Is The Cause of One

NEW LONDON — Two accidents, one the result of the curiosity of a 4-year-old, resulted in more than $100 damage within five minutes Saturday.

The first accident occurred about 4:10 p.m. about 150 feet west of Algoma Street on Wolf River Avenue when a car driven by Donald F. Dey, 63, 510 W. Pine St., backed from a parking area and collided with a car operated by Richard Seidler, 34, route 1, Appleton, traveling west on Wolf River Avenue.

A car owned by Walter J. Schoenrock, 503 Wyman St., received several hundred dollars of damage when it rolled down a driveway, crossed Cook Street and struck a tree.

Police said Schoenrock's 4-year-old grandson was in the car and had released the emergency brake enabling it to back down the sloped driveway.

Dairy Smorgasbord Set by Farm Bureau

MANAWA — The Waupaca County Farm Bureau will sponsor a Rural-Urban Dairy Smorgasbord at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Cedar Springs.

Allan Peterson, sales and member promotion manager of Mid-west Breeders Cooperative, will be the speaker. The 4-H Clubs will provide entertainment.

The Clintonville Street department is busy on street repair work. The old surface was torn up and is being removed on N. Clinton Avenue between Pearl and Eighteenth streets. The 1969 street improvement program totals $31,040 for seal coating and paving. (Laib Photo)

Platte was going east on Eighth Street when the brakes failed, according to the report. Instead of hitting a vehicle waiting for the light to change, he tried to hit the Kiermans garage but did not get the car over the curb, and hit the fire hydrant and signals before stopping.

The driver was not injured. Damage to the car was estimated at $600. Estimate of damage to the hydrant and signals was not listed.

Three Selected To Study Future Chilton Parking

Problems in Uptown, Reconstruction Cited; Chamber Asks Report

CHILTON — A three-member committee has been named to study parking problems in the uptown area of the city by the Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Adding to existing problems will be the reconstruction of Main Street from Madison Street westward, scheduled for 1970-71. It is expected to seriously affect parking facilities.

Named to the committee are Robert Voigt, chairman; Lyle Kurtz, and Ken Sipple. A preliminary report will be presented by them at the next Chamber meeting.

The board approved appointment of a co-chairman for the retail committee to replace James Davis, who has moved from the city.

New Brochure

Buildings to be included in a new brochure about the city were reviewed. Work on the brochure will continue under the leadership of Arthur Hugo.

C. J. Weber was named by President William Kartheiser to supervise repainting signs listing church services.

Ken Sipple gave a report on the clean-up project of the Manitowoc River by the Jaycees. Chamber directors agreed that the project should include some rear yards bordering the river. This was tabled to await Jaycee progress.

Ladies night for the officers and board of directors will be held in August.

At State Convention Democrats to Consider Vietnam, ABM Issues

STEVENS POINT (AP) — The tentatively modified and consolidated Vietnam war, campus disturbances and President Nixon's antiballistic missile proposal figure to get much attention this week when Wisconsin Democrats gather for their annual state convention.

There may be at least two. The convention's Resolutions Committee concluded a weekend of pre-convention study with at least 100 resolutions having been offered, chairman Lewis T. Mitniss of Janesville reported Sunday.

The assemblyman said most of the speakers appearing at a committee meeting Saturday felt "that the United States should start the process of getting out" of the Vietnam conflict, "letting the South Vietnamese fight their own battles."

Unwise Expenditure
And most committee members, he said, described Nixon's ABM proposal as an "unwise and wasteful expenditure," an opinion expressed earlier this year by Young Democrats at their state meeting.

Mitniss said resolutions handed the committee have been ten-

Mediation Set In Dispute Over VTE-12 Pacts

Board, Faculty Representatives To Meet Thursday

Representatives of the Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 board salary committee and the VTE-12 faculty association welfare committee announced Saturday they have mutually selected a mediator in their contract negotiations dispute.

The decision to go into mediation comes from Donald J. Steinfort, Oshkosh, chairman of the board committee, and Caryll G. Milliren, Appleton, chairman of the faculty group, who announced the selection of Edward Krinsky of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission at Madison, as mediator.

Representatives will meet with Krinsky at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Neenah offices of the district to try to solve the impasse which has resulted from the faculty association's rejection of the board's contract proposal last week.

Earlier this week, the faculty welfare committee said it would petition the WERC for a fact-finder in an effort to break the stalemate negotiations.

Mediation is free to both parties, but fact finding involves a fee and can become costly to both sides.

Appleton Banks Study Student Loans

BY BOB LAUX
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton bankers are holding firm in their present student loan policies but aren't "out advertising" them because of the rising cost of money.

Many of the loans are guaranteed by the federal government under the Higher Education Act of 1965. Under the act, undergraduates may borrow up to $1,000 a year at a maximum rate of 7 per cent interest from banks and other lending institutions.

The government pays all interests and presents the bank with an interim note on the principal while the student is in school. The student becomes responsible for the interest costs and must start repaying the principal amount of the loan nine months after he graduates.

If the student fails to repay his debts, the government is obliged to assume responsibility for the loan.

The Wisconsin State Student Loan Program and the privately endowed U.S. Student Aid Fund operate according to these rules.

Commercial Rates Rise

Since the implementation of the act, the government ceiling on commercial interest rates has risen from 6 to 7 per cent, with prime bank rates jumping to 7 1/2 per cent.

Bank executives are feeling the pressure of funding student loans at a lower price than their best rates and officials of the insured loan bureau in the U.S. Office of Education have expressed concern over what banks will do.

Beck Fisher Jr., vice president of investments at First National, said that at the present time, his bank is "continuing to process all loan applications that come to us." He admitted, however, that it is possible the bank could change its procedure in the unpredictable money market.

Cutback Affects Loans

Appleton State Vice President Gilbert Relein pointed out that a cutback in the amount of lendable funds influences all departments of the bank, including students loans. But since most student applications come in late August, he was reluctant to predict a definite policy for that time.

Alvin Golz, who administers the student loans at Appleton State, said that at the present moment the "availability of money for student loans has been set."

Banks aiming for diversification in investments set similar limits in other lending categories. As in all loans, the first people the institution tries to accommodate are its regular customers.

At Northern State, a limit of lendable funds for student loans also has been set, according to John Hennessey, bank president. Hennessey indicated a "continuing liability" that restricts the amount of funds available for such loans.

Not for Five Years

Students who get a loan as freshmen may need additional funding in subsequent years. Payments on principal often do not begin until five years later.

Banks also are fearful of abuse that can creep into the program, Hennessey said.

Parents have been known to beat the regular high rates of interest on ordinary loans by financing cars or other items through student loans and then sending their sons and daughters to college on personal savings.

Outagamie County Bank will lend schooling money only to students whose parents are depositors or who are depositors themselves.

State Unit Involved

The Wisconsin Higher Education Corporation is one of the agencies administering state and government funds for student loans.

An advisory committee to the corporation, with First National President Harold Adams as vice-chairman, reportedly has recommended that interest rates for student loans be pegged at 1 1/2 points above the prime rate.

One Appleton bank executive feels the basic weakness in the student loan program is its discrimination in favor of financially well-off customers.

"We've already given loans to students whose parents are making $20,000 a year or more," he said. "It's the good student whose parents aren't making much money who is getting hurt now." It would be better, he maintained, to "get these funds to the students who really need them," and base loans on scholastic ability and parental or personal income needs.

Trucks and Speeds

When the assembly the other day took up a bill proposing to increase the maximum speed of commercial vehicles of 10,000 pounds or more upon the public highways, one of its members to the surprise of his colleagues proposed an amendment to authorize trucks equal rights with private automobiles in this regard.

The measure before the house would have raised the truck speed limit from 45 to 55 miles an hour. The author argued, with considerable merit, that hundreds of truck drivers have been ignoring the limitation, and evidently with impunity, for arrests under that section of the law appear to be few.

He asked for a 55 night-time and a 65 day-time limit, as permitted for automobiles, and the higher limits already applicable to the Interstate highway system. Passenger busses, it should be explained, already have the higher speed privileges.

At first glance, we may suppose that many private motorists will resent such a proposition for the benefit of the commercial vehicle owners, shippers and drivers. But the more we ponder the matter, the more we are inclined to suggest that some increase in maximum speeds for trucks is defensible. At 45 miles an hour, the limit as the law now stands, a truck driver can pile up traffic behind him annoyingly and dangerously.

Standards of construction and design of our major roads are today infinitely superior to those of decades ago when the original commercial vehicle limits were imposed.

Moreover, if a higher speed for a heavily laden passenger bus is tolerable, who can reasonably argue that it is harmful to permit truckers, frequently piloting lighter vehicles, to proceed at a more rapid pace?

The commercial vehicle speed bill has been referred to committee for further consideration of the amendment. The committee, it seems to us, ought to consult the state division of highways about the results of late studies on the effect of speed and weight on highway wear, and the state division of motor vehicles on the safety considerations involved in a higher speed limit for commercial vehicles. If the latter offers objections, which we think to be unlikely, legislators might then inquire why there has not been more emphasis put upon the enforcement of the existing 45 mile an hour law that has been in effect for many years. The annual reports of its sister agency on vehicle speeds and vehicle counts have consistently shown that the 45 mile an hour limit is being flaunted.

How Many Troops Does NATO Need?

Last month Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau announced that Canada would begin to withdraw its troops attached to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization from Europe.

Canada has a very well trained 10,000 man force stationed in West Germany. It includes an air division and an infantry brigade. Mr. Trudeau proposed that at least two thirds of the force be withdrawn by 1972, although he said that Canada would send a lightly armed mobile group of about 2,000 men to NATO instead.

Apparently there are two factors which have prompted the Canadian move. First is the idea that the threat of a Russian invasion using conventional weapons is no longer likely despite the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, and this is probably correct. The panicky Russian effort to hold on to its domination in Eastern Europe is quite different from any effort to take over a prepared Western Europe by force.

Secondly, is the improvement in troop mobility. Maneuvers conducted by the United States have demonstrated the ability to move troops from one continent to another with speed and ease. The Canadians can argue that their troops back home would be readily available within a few hours in case of aggression against Western Europe.

Since the resignation of Charles de Gaulle, there is also the possibility that France will once more take more responsibility within the framework of a united Europe instead of De Gaulle's go-it-alone policy. At least observers believe that relations between Paris and Bonn are likely to improve when either Mr. Pompidou or Mr. Poher takes office as President of France.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird has argued against the Canadian withdrawal not so much for security reasons but because it might "encourage those in the United States who want us to withdraw from our European commitments." The issue of European defense has recently been debated in London at the conference of NATO defense ministers and its nuclear planning group with stress put upon when and how nuclear weapons should be used in case of attack. But it seems highly improbable that a Russian invasion of the West would be met with conventional forces. Such an invasion would spell the end of the tacit agreement on spheres of influence and a complete breakdown of efforts to keep the peace between the Soviet Union and non-Communists nations to the west. It may be that Mr. Laird's statement is an indication of the growing feeling of American isolation from its allies rather than of a real threat to the dissolution of NATO.

Basically this may be the major problem — that despite — or perhaps because of — our massive military might and financial wealth, we are having less influence among the non-Communist countries than ever before. It seems to be high time for a thorough review of our own commitments to NATO and their relevance to the dangers in the world and the encouragement of independent nations which are not completely reliant upon the United States.

Crimes Off Military Bases

In a split decision of 5 to 3, the United States Supreme Court has ruled that American servicemen, accused of crimes off military bases and which have no service connection, can no longer be tried by military courts.

It has been the custom of military authorities and local officials to try to agree upon where such servicemen should be tried. Actually the military used court-martial proceedings in only about 15 per cent of such cases while local courts handled the rest. But at issue were the civil rights of the servicemen since court-martial do not always offer the accused the right of trial by jury or indictment by grand jury.

The military services have argued that the Constitution grants Congress the power "to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces" and this includes the handling of crimes whether on base or not. The Fifth Amendment itself specifies that its protections do not extend to "cases arising in the land and naval forces." But the majority on the Court insisted that the intent of the Constitution was not to extend such military authority to ordinary civilian crimes.

The decision is actually in keeping with the extraterritorial agreements the United States has with most countries where our military forces are stationed and which were so hotly debated more than a decade ago. Local authorities have jurisdiction over servicemen accused of crimes not connected with the military, those committed off base and which have nothing to do with military security even when the host nation has considerably more severe punishments than in the United States. If this is permitted in foreign countries, it should follow that it be allowed in the United States as well.

Kraft Writes
Nixon May Achieve Successes at Midway, But It Won't Help War

WASHINGTON — The Midway Island summit conference between President Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu is shaping up as a supreme example of how hard it is to disentangle from the Vietnamese war.

For all the signs indicate that the meeting will look like a huge success for President Nixon — another advance for the policy of jollying the Saigon government forward on the road to peace. But, in fact, the President will probably be getting himself more deeply involved in the war than ever before.

One of the arrows that points toward success involves elections for a new South Vietnamese government. President Thieu has been barnstorming around South Korea and Formosa declaring that he will never accept a coalition government with the national Liberation Front, or Viet Cong.

THROWS DOWN GAUNTLET

For good measure, and just to show how tough he is, he has thrown in a lot of other gamy rhetoric from the cold war. For instance in Taipei, he threw down the gauntlet to Peking. He said: "Asians cannot live in peace if Communism in this part of the world is not destroyed."

But in fact, President Thieu has never been asked — and is not about to be asked — by the Nixon administration to accept a coalition regime with the Liberation Front. He is going to be asked to accept what the President called for in his May 14 speech and what Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge proposed at the last session of the Paris peace talks. That is a new South Vietnamese government formed through elections under some kind of international supervision.

That proposal is not very hard for President Thieu to swallow — the more so as he virtually approved every word in President Nixon's May 14 speech. But because of General Thieu's tough talk of the past two weeks, agreement will look like a major concession, a show of sweet reasonableness, a giant step forward on the road to peace.

The other arrow pointing in the same direction involves troop withdrawals. During his Asian tour President Thieu repeatedly said that he would not accept unilateral withdrawal of American forces.

In fact, he is only being asked to accept replacement of American troops by newly-trained South Vietnamese forces — something he has long since accepted, and indeed proposed. But because of General Thieu's recent rhetoric, the mere fact of some American boys starting home will again look like a giant step forward.

WILL PAY PRICE

In return for this show of success, President Nixon will probably have to pay a very real price. For one thing the Midway meeting heightens the prestige of President Thieu — the more so as he made it seem that he forced the conference upon the United States. Inevitably, the public commitment of the Nixon administration which now runs only to the South Vietnamese people will be made to look as though it extends to the Thieu regime.

More important still, the Midway meeting is a leg up for those officials, notably Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, who have always equated success in Southeast Asia with good relations between Washington and Saigon. With a seemingly harmonious meeting under their belts, these apostles of friendship will be still further encouraged to tie ever closer the bonds between Washington and Saigon.

All of this would be acceptable if it somehow forced or tempted the other side to scale down the fighting or step up the pace of its bargaining at the Paris peace talks. But the other side has already discounted a first troop withdrawal as a kind of propaganda trick. It will probably not feel obliged to make a complementary reduction of its military actions.

Neither is the other side going to be much intrigued by the prospect of elections under international supervision. On the contrary, the Liberation Front is pushing as never before its project for elections managed by a "provisional coalition" government. That is why the role of the Front representative in the Paris talks — Tran Buu Kiem — is now being heightened by such devices as a trip to Cuba.

In these circumstances, Midway is unlikely to have any positive impact on the other side. And that means that, despite all the signs of success, the real consequence will be that the war goes on, and the casualties continue for months and months and months to come.

Oust 'Birds and Bees' From Sex Education

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The birds and the bees should be kept out of sex education, a symposium on "Sex and Marriage in the Permissive Society" was told here.

One of the speakers said humans have a special relationship distinct from the purely biological drives of animals. "By teaching children about sex using animals as examples, this special relationship in human behavior can be overlooked or missed by children."

At special ceremonies, three 9th graders at Madison Junior High presented the class will, prophecy and history. They were Lynn LeDuc, Marian Desens and Chris LeDam.

Badger Boys representatives chosen at Kimberly High School were Dennis Dresang and Marvin Vanden Broek. One girl, Ealine Hooyman, was named to Badger Girls State.

Badger Boys and Girl State delegates from St. John High School, Little Chute, were Andy Ebben and James Wildenberg, Mary Jo Van Thiel and Carol Jansen.

Wisconsin Report
Ody Fish's Election To Third Term as GOP Chairman a Tribute

MADISON — The re-election of Ody J. Fish as chairman of the Republican state party organization serves to call attention to the unique party structure in this state, and to certify the youthful Fish as one of the most successful of the men who have piloted the Republican campaign machinery here since its restructuring nearly 45 years ago.

The choice of Fish as captain of the GOP volunteer campaign vehicle for a third two-year term is only the second time that its leader has won such tenure, as far as the fragmentary records of the party show.

The first man to serve three terms was the late George Gilkey of Merrill, in the infant days of the Voluntary Committee, as it was then popularly known, from 1928 to 1934. The first chairman was the late William J. Campbell of Oshkosh, one of the founding fathers of the organization in 1925.

ENTITLED TO CREDIT
Fish was Warren Knowles' personal campaign manager in 1964 and therefore was entitled reporter is not absolutely certain that no other purely voluntary party elsewhere has taken over the functions of what normally is a statutory party organization, but the Wisconsin system is, at the very least, unusual.

The news headlines on Fish's re-election called him "party chairman." In a strict construction, that is not wholly accurate.

The "party" in Wisconsin is the machinery described in state law, for the Republicans as well as the Democrats. It is a structure of committees starting from the state central committee, through county and district committees, down through precinct committeemen.

But it is a fair speculation that not one voter out of 100 today remembers that there is a statutory party and that is lives on in name and place in the law code, if not in actual function and performance.

FOLLOWED LONG STRUGGLE
The origin of the "voluntary" party was the struggle over many years between the regulars or the "Stalwarts" as many called themselves, with the LaFollette Progressives, for the control of the Republican party machinery.

The formation of the voluntary "Stalwart" wing resulted from the conclusion of its adherents that the LaFollettes were not to be dislodged and that they needed their own vehicle to select and endorse candidates in the open primary. There were incidental conveniences and advantages, as it turned out, that were not fully recognized at the time, such as the fact that expenditure limitations did not apply to voluntary organizations.

So successful and convenient was the new arrangement that it has survived by many years the demise of the LaFollette movement which indirectly gave birth to it. If imitation is the most sincere form of flattery, it is relevant to note that the contemporary Democrats also work exclusively within the framework of the voluntary organization, not because of any origin in factionalism, but because of the greater freedom of action afforded to them.

Under law State Sen. Leland McFarland of Milwaukee County is the "chairman" of the Democratic party of Wisconsin, but James Wimmer is the real chairman. Thus also Curtis J. McKay of Mequon is the "Republican chairman," according to law, but it is unlikely that many persons besides his wife are aware of it.

Wyngaard

to some of the credit for the recapture of the state administration from the Democrats who had held it for the previous six years, longer than at any other time in state history. As the leader of the organization in two successful following campaigns, Fish was entitled to some satisfaction in his record as a volunteer politician.

At the age of 42, he is perhaps the best known of the state party captains in the country. Not only has he been chosen head of the association of state chairmen, but the word has percolated through party circles that he could have become national party chief to succeed Ray Bliss if he had been willing to do so.

Fish had no such ambition. He wants to stay in Wisconsin, and his career as an organization politician is attributable as much to his regard for Warren Knowles as to any other factor.

SYSTEM IS UNUSUAL
Earlier the word "unique" was used to describe the party machinery of this state. This

Editor, The Post-Crescent:
It seems that the Appleton Post-Crescent writers have become experts on the subject of Waupaca County Welfare. In the last year there has been many articles about the poor people of our county, that need help so badly through our welfare program. I boil a little each time I read these articles and then the June 2nd issue really done it with the article, "Welfare Home Is Far from Palace."
I as a mother of six would like to set a few things straight about living in the middle class income group.
The writer of the article says the Waupaca County A.D.C. recipients get $78 per month to feed a family of four which is $19.50 per person. Well my family of eight (Pa, Ma, and kids 16, 15, 9, 4, 2, 9 months) eat on $20 per person and we do not get surplus commodities. Do you know why we have to live on such a strict budget? Because we have to pay for a few things that your welfare recipients do not have to worry about such as eye glasses for three, dentist bills, hospital bills, hospital insurance, doctor bills, drugstore bills, all for 8 people. Plus property taxes, income taxes, state tax, social security plus car insurance, and car expense so Ma and Pa can both work.
Did you ever spend half a day with three small kids at a clinic for baby shots while your neighbor on A.D.C. can make an appointment with her doctor and have that shot given without ever getting a bill. Did you ever sit up all night with a child with a high temp because he is cutting teeth while your friend on A.D.C. can run hers into the hospital without any questions asked. Did you ever have a baby sitter come in to care for the little ones until pa gets home from work, so that ma can work to help support that poor lady a mile down the road who is on her way to the beach for the afternoon. Did you ever have to pay a babysitter while ma is in the hospital for surgery while the lady in the next town can call her welfare office and ask that her children be cared for while she is in the hospital with the flu.

This article states that clothes are expensive, that a 16 year old girl cannot buy stockings for school on her allowance for clothes. Why isn't she working part time? I have two teenagers, one 15, one 16, they have to buy all their own clothes, they work hard all summer to be able to get through high school the next year. And don't tell me there isn't any work, did this child ever pick cucumbers, baby sit, mow lawn, and if nothing is available she can babysit for the little one's while mother works. Factories are crying for help both day or nights. But no, instead this girl is preached to all day long about how the wealthy people of her community won't help her. The people in Waupaca County that own their own home and a camping trailer and a new car are the people that the whole family including the kids are taught to work for the things they want.

The article also states from a "Christian" mother that she can't go to church anymore because of the attitude of other people. She must not have had too much faith to begin with because if you really need help through the welfare then you should not be ashamed of it. The only reason people can't hold their heads high is when they are ashamed of what they are doing.
It was stated in the article that it doesn't make sense for an unwed mother to have an illegitimate child for 26 cents a day. Well let me tell you it makes lots of sense when before that she was making nothing. When a woman has an illegitimate child, more then likely she has never held down a full time job, or hasn't even gotten out of high school yet. Now not only her child's needs are cared for but so are hers. Now I truly believe that every woman that has a baby should have the choice of giving that baby up or keeping it but she should also be informed that she will have to support that child if she keeps it. The young girl that gives her baby out for adoption is doing so, knowing full well how miserable it is going to be for her but also hoping that it is best for her child.
The article also states that the average person is on the welfare roll for only months. What about the rest? What about the women that has a 14 year old child, her husband deserted her about 7 years ago. The welfare took over all payments, then a year ago she decided to go to California to find a husband, in two months she was back and the welfare again took over all her needs plus got her all her furniture again. Now in my way of thinking if this woman is smart enough to take a trip to California then she should be smart enough to work and support herself and one 14 year old.
This is just one case in so many, that it makes you wonder just who is the underprivileged in our county.
Most of our social workers know many of the cases and try to do something about them. They can even be taken before the judge, but our

Proud Elk Believes It's Elks' Own Problem

Editor, The Post-Crescent.
Despite the fact that I was one of the Appleton Elks who voted to remove the so-called "white only" restrictions from the Elks Grand Lodge constitution and statutes, I cannot help but feel annoyed at the semi-hysterical letters about this issue which are being printed in The Post-Crescent's "People's Forum" department.
The issue, unfortunately, is dead for this year, so far as the Appleton Elks lodge is concerned. Under the order's statutes, the resolution which recently was defeated, cannot be brought to the floor of the Appleton Elks lodge before this summer's Grand Lodge convention. But it will come up again next fall or early next year. And it will come up again every year until this restriction has been removed.
But, just because the Appleton lodge has voted not to introduce such a resolution, that doesn't mean the resolution won't go before the Grand Lodge when it holds its convention this summer in Dallas. It has in past years, I'm sure it will again this year and some day the resolution will pass, just as civil rights laws eventually were passed by the Congress.
But, why the sudden hysteria? Why all the letters? The Appleton lodge can't vote on the matter again during this lodge year. What we have been reading is a classic example of "whipping a dead horse."

Contrary to what most letters to the editor are implying, there are hundreds of good, decent men who belong to the Appleton Elks lodge. They are not racial bigots and they are not white supremacists. These men make up a majority of our lodge. I'm sure, and some day their feelings will prevail when they all show up at one time to vote. The Appleton Elks Lodge, however, cannot change the Grand Lodge constitution by itself; there are something like 3,000 other lodges in the country and the majority of them also must approve the constitutional and statutory change. And like the hundreds of men in the Appleton lodge, there are hundreds of thousands of good, decent Elks throughout the United States. Eventually, their feelings will prevail.
But this constant harassment that appears in the People's Forum department is serving no good purpose, other than to inflame the minds of individual Elks who are bigoted and who already are opposed to the constitutional change. But, worse, it is building ill feelings among good, loyal Elks who, while they are opposed to "white only," love the Order as well. They know they're humanitarians who have done charitable work through the lodge through financial aid and direct work. These men know that many of the letter writers talk, but do little else. These men are the men who eventually will support the constitutional change. But call them bigots often enough, and their actions will begin to show it.
We're a private organization and we have private problems. We will solve our problem's just as privately. People's Forum letters or not.
Sincerely,
A Proud Elk

A Beauty Tip From Your Elizabeth Arden Representative
Perfect makeup depends on a thorough cleansing and refreshing of the skin. The method for you depends on your skin type. After cleansing apply a moisturizer... to give your skin an all-day treatment and enable you to apply foundation easier. Remember that even if your skin is oily, it still needs moisture—they are not one and the same. In selecting your foundation keep both your skin type and color in mind. There is a type that is just right for you. Foundation color has often been called the key to perfection and rightfully so. Remember these three steps: cleansing, moisturizing and the right foundation... they could be the keys to a more beautiful you.

Stealing Car Is Theft With or Without Keys
Editor, The Post-Crescent:
I'd like to go a few steps further with the Concerned Mother's reply to the teenager that stole the auto and added a plea to auto owners to take their keys out of their autos. She says our youth has been brainwashed because of this slogan — don't help a good youth to bad, but I would express the idea that no matter how it reads or how it sounds it's misleading. An auto stolen with keys left in the auto is an easy theft and the owner has a choice if someone wants his car after he has protected it to the best of his ability let him take it the hard way without the keys. The idea of taking it with the keys and helping a good youth go bad gives the youth a crutch for an excuse, but this does not alter the fact an auto was stolen or that he has chalked up a police record that blights the bud before it becomes a tree. This record has the name of the offender and his parents' name, his year of birth, etc. It holds him responsible for his own actions. If he is lucky he gets probation, but if he again fouls up he chalks up another offense. He might have to spend some time being a ward of the state until he's been found to have paid his debt to society. But alas no eraser goes to work on this record and it may cause him some grave trouble in adulthood; no public job, marriage difficulties, and hinder the chance for a good job. So my plea is to the youth, don't be looking into autos until you find a set of keys. The end result of your thrill ride will clutter up your life and those you hold near and dear. Remember laws were made to protect you and me. So what's mine belongs to me and the laws will uphold my rights.

This Society Objects To Cruelty Toward Fish
Editor, The Post-Crescent:
As a citizen with a throbbing interest in the total ecology, I have recently attended public hearings held by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources on water quality of three Northeastern Wisconsin rivers. At each of these hearings numerous individuals who identified themselves as sports fishermen stated, among other things, that the waters of the state belong to the people.
I and my fellow members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Our Finny Friends (S P O C O F F) agree completely with that assertion. We believe, too, that not only the waters but also the fish in these waters belong to the people — not only the so-called sportsman, but to all the people.
We deplore in general any inhuman treatment to any fish. Specifically we deplore the barbaric practice of snagging fish in the lip with barbed hooks and totally depriving them of life-sustaining dissolved oxygen by forcefully removing them from their natural aquatic environment and suffocating them in a gaseous fluid containing substantially no water. Permitting the so called sportsmen to legally torture and kill our fish is, we believe, a rank injustice, an unwarranted abrogation of the property rights of the people, and a blot on the fair escutcheon of humanity.

Aging Process Is Being Studied by Team of Scientists
CHICAGO (AP) — Aging of humans is under study by a team of scientists at Downey Veterans Administration Hospital in an effort to determine what is involved in the process.
Hyman Weinstein, chief of the research-in-aging laboratory, said more than 25 scientists from several Midwestern universities are involved in the project.
Their laboratories are seeking scientific information about the complex substances that form human connective tissues.
Scientists believe the "weathering" by constant exposure to sun and wind and resulting permanent changes in the skin may represent chemical alterations related to the aging process.
"The skin's constant exposure to the wind and sun may cause it to 'age' more quickly than skin or protected parts of the body," Dr. Weinstein said.

He's Champion Of Lost Causes
DOVER, Del. (AP) — Republican State Sen. Andy Foltz of Dover took the floor of the Delaware Senate to complain that the method of tape recording Senate sessions wasn't working.
Unable to find a tape from a session last year, Foltz said "There is something seriously wrong when you can't go back one year and find out what happened."
At this point, Foltz was interrupted by Reynolds du Pont, Senate president pro tem, who said: "Senator, would you care to repeat what you just said so we could make a record of your comments? The tape just ran out."
As Foltz took his seat, he said "I'm just a champion of lost causes."

Rockefeller Broke Vow In Supporting Marchi

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The most bizarre element in Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's announcement that he will back State Sen.

John J. Marchi over Mayor John V. Lindsay for mayor—if the conservative Marchi wins the June 17 Republican primary —was that it broke an agreement between the Rockefeller and Lindsay staffs.

The agreement was that neither Rockefeller nor Lindsay would answer any political questions at their joint press conference at Gracie Mansion (the Mayor's residence) on May 21, called to announce a state-city urban development program.

But beyond that, Rockefeller professed to be stunned by the reaction to his offhand bombshell. To liberal Republicans who called him to complain that evening, the governor expressed his own consternation, claimed he had been misunderstood, and said he wanted to set the record straight.

Overlooked Facts
Moreover the governor indicated to friends that he had momentarily overlooked or forgotten two vital facts about the torrid Lindsay-Marchi primary race: that win or lose the Republican primary, Marchi would be on the November ballot as the Conservative Party nominee and Lindsay as the Liberal Party nominee, thus obscuring the matter of "party unity" which Rockefeller was making so much of. The politician most disturbed of all by Rockefeller's totally unexpected bombshell was of course Lindsay himself. Lindsay made no secret of all his unhappiness when, on the evening of May 22, Rockefeller telephoned him to say he was sorry.

Rockefeller went further. He told Lindsay that he was drafting a statement "clarifying" what he had said the previous day. Lindsay was duly grateful. The governor next called an editor of the New York Times. He was very disturbed, he said, at the "interpretation" put on his May 21 announcement at Gracie Mansion. He said he was drafting a clarifying statement and asked that it be put on page

Area Guardsmen Attending Annual Summer Encampment

The Army National Guard 32nd Infantry Brigades of Appleton, Neenah, Clintonville, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac, approximately 750 strong, will join 28 similar units from throughout the state for their annual summer encampment June 14-28 at Camp McCoy. State National Guardsmen will undergo a rigid and diversified training program during their encampment. In addition, they will be at Camp McCoy, other Guard units will be at Camp Williams and Volk Field, Wis., and home stations in Cudahy, Madison and Milwaukee, and at Fort Carson, Colo.; Gulfport, Miss.; Rhein-Main Air Force Base, Germany, and Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho.

The level of training for Army Guard units will be section and platoon, with the exception that artillery units will conduct batteries-level training. Many of the units will be undergoing Army training tests.

Some of the general goals for this year's encampments are to further develop leadership and instructor capabilities at all levels with particular emphasis on junior officers and non-commissioned officers; To emphasize planning, direction, control, supervision and coordination at the staff level; to further qualify various sections in performance of administrative and logistical activities in support of units in the field, and to provide on-the-job training which will enhance individual proficiency of each Guardsman.

Changed Nothing
The "clarifying" statement, however, was not even a mini-bombshell. It neither refined nor repudiated the governor's pledge of May 21—that, in the interest of party unity, he would support the conservative Marchi in the general election if Marchi won the Republican primary. As it should have, this "clarification" wound up on the back pages of the Sunday Times. It had changed nothing.

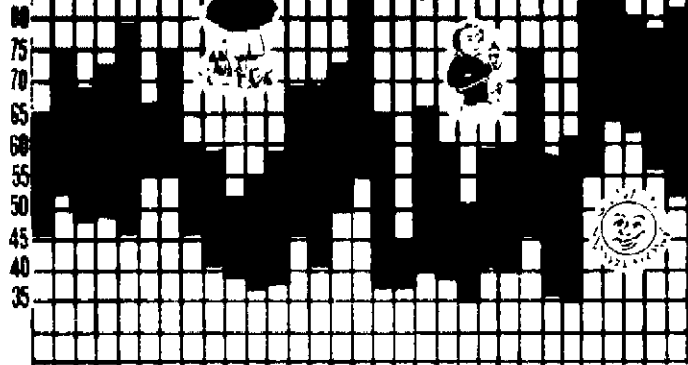

During the drafting process of the Rockefeller clarification, Lindsay agents tried hard to find out what the statement

Fundamental Question
This stand by Rockefeller raises fundamental questions about the governor's motives. In the first place, it gave powerful aid and comfort to his implacable enemies — the conservatives within his own party and the Conservative Party itself. In the second, it was a blow to the jugular of Sen. Jacob K. Javits and other New York Republican liberals — Rockefeller's allies in 11 years of battling the conservatives — who had carefully avoided the hypothetical question of the general election.

Finally, if Marchi does win on June 17, the Rockefeller policy will have the effect of giving the burgeoning Conservative Party what it has always wanted—a virtual veto power over Republican nominees based on conservative control of the enrolled vote in Republican primaries.

If this position is designed to clear Rockefeller's track to a fourth nomination for Governor without a Conservative Party opponent, it is a high price to pay.

'Average' May in Appleton Had Both Record High, Low

The month of May in Appleton averaged out to be just about normal, but both a record high and record low temperature just two days apart combined to make it a rather unusual month weatherwise.

The coldest day and the hottest — offering a 51 degree difference — fell in the latter part of the month, with a wintry 35 degrees recorded on May 26 and the sweltering 86 degrees just two days later on May 28. The record low of 35 actually was first set on May 21 and repeated itself on the 26th.

These extremes, when combined with the more normal temperatures enjoyed the rest of the month, all add up to a mean temperature for the month of May of 56.7 degrees, which is only .2 degrees above normal.

Precipitation also stayed well within the average bounds with June to 16 hours, 34 minutes, on a total of 3.54 inches, 54 inches above normal, was well distributed over the month with the largest daily amount of 1.31 inches falling in the middle, on May 17.

Heating degree days in Appleton during May totaled 282 compared to a normal of 290 June.

Psychiatry Can Help in Emotional Problems

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read the letter from the woman who was afraid of dogs and you recommended that she see a psychiatrist or go to a mental health clinic.

Well, I am also afraid of dogs and I know there is nothing wrong with me mentally. That is ridiculous. There are thousands of people afraid of dogs when you were young! That's how a lot of lifelong fears and feelings start. Didn't you read the column recently about the woman who has feared the dark all her life because as a small child she was punished by being shut in a dark closet?

These fears are mental. They aren't physical, so they have to be mental. Or emotional, if you like. What's the difference?

The point I have tried so often to explain is that such mental quirks trouble a great many of us, but they don't mean that we are "mentally ill" or ought to be in a hospital.

These emotional quirks often can be straightened out by a psychiatrist. After all, I can't cure your fear with a pill or some salve. But a psychiatrist, who has studied the curious way our emotions plague us, often can correct the situation in a short time.

Psychiatry isn't designed just for severe cases of mental illness. It is also intended for treatment of smaller — but still annoying — emotional problems.

Sometimes I speculate on whether psychiatrists may not be doing as much total good in treating minor problems briefly as they do in long-term treatments of very difficult cases.

There is growing general understanding that emotion problems can need treatment just as much as physical ones need treatment. But there are still some people who can't see it that way. Too bad.

Dear Sir: I read your article about sickle cell anemia. What would happen to a person if he had a transfusion of such blood? — G.T.

Nothing. In the first place, such blood would not be accepted by a blood bank or used for a transfusion.

But even suppose such "sick" blood were transfused, the cells would die off in a matter of weeks or at most a few months. Even healthy blood cells have a limited lifetime and are replaced by new cells produced by the patient's own body.

Transfusing such blood would not give the recipient sickle cell anemia, if that is what worries you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What vitamin am I lacking if I have a dry skin? My legs are especially dry and my head itches. I'm only 38 and my hair comes off suit which alleged improper business promotion activities, has agreed to halt the practices, furnish an accounting to the Justice department and refund some of the money it has collected in the state.

One of the defendants in the suit against Koscot Interplanetary, Inc., is Chester Nowak, Green Bay area representative of the firm.

Warren announced Thursday the Department of Justice had obtained a consent order restricting the activities of the firm, and several of its principal distributors.

Improper Promotion

Warren's suit had alleged that the Florida-based firm was not registered with the state as a foreign corporation, had little or not assets or property in the state, and was engaging in improper forms of promotion and sales of its distributorships.

Some state residents had invested up to $4,500 each in the firm, according to the suit.

The Koscot firm has been operating actively in the state since August, 1968. It was named in the suit on May 12.

How To Spot Quacks

First, you must know that any qualified specialist will invariably conduct standard tests for any cancer at a recognized hospital or clinic and he will plan a course of therapy according to the results of these tests. But the quack will:

— Neither perform recognized tests nor be associated with a recognized hospital or clinic — although the tests he does perform will invariably produce a diagnosis of cancer. He very well may advise against biopsy to verify cancer — using the excuse that "it will only spread the cancer."

— Boast that he has many well-known patients — including politicians, lawyers, movie actors, writers, etc. (This, incidentally, may be perfectly true).

Testimonies Questionable

— Produce testimonials from former patients who claim he has cured their cancer. No reputable doctor advertises his accomplishments or boasts in print about his famous patients. And, if you look behind the testimonials carefully, you may find those quoted died shortly after they authored the glowing accounts of their cures.

— Claim, when challenged to put his treatment to a scientific test, that he "won't get a fair trial" because the medical establishment is prejudiced against his method. Or he may challenge the medical establishment to test his product — then either fail to deliver a sample or insist on designing the test conditions himself.

— Insist, perhaps to help justify the high cost, that his cancer cure is "secret" — something no reputable member of the medical community would do for obvious reasons.

— Until a universal cure or cures for cancer are found, our most potent — and least expensive as well — weapons against this dread disease are regular medical check-ups, and awareness of the seven widely publicized cancer warning signals. (Copyright, 1969)

Cancer Quack Betrays Self by His Methods

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Today, more than half of all cancers can be cured if they are diagnosed in time and treated properly by surgery, radiation, chemotherapy or a combination of these. In many types of cancers, such as skin or cervical cancer, the odds are even better. The vast majority of cases can be cured if they are detected early and correctly treated.

Yet, thousands of cancer victims continue to refuse or postpone to a fatal degree legitimate treatment and to seek instead the services or elixirs of the cancer quack. In all, estimates the American Medical Association, $50 million is spent each year in the U.S. for phony cancer tests and treatments. And too frequently, huge sums are spent by frightened elderly citizens who are already on the brink of bankruptcy and who may not have the disease to begin with.

Supreme Court Ruling

Unions Have Right to Picket For 'Informational Purpose'

MADISON (AP) — In what could be a far reaching decision, the Wisconsin Supreme Court has held state courts may not prevent unions from picketing for "informational purposes" even though the effect may be to cause other employees to walk off the job.

The unanimous decision came in a case involving the Dietz Construction Co. and Carpenter's Union, Local 2351. The union had picketed a construction site run by the company in Rhineland in September of 1968, to demonstrate, it said, that mixed crews were being used in the job. "The company was not observing craft distinctions, so that when laborers were used to do the carpentry work they were not paid carpenter's scale," the union said.

As a result of the picketing, which the union described as "informational" several union brick masons walked off the job. The company charged the National Labor Relations Act had been violated in that the picketing was designed to coerce non-members into joining the union.

The court decided, in an opinion written by Justice Robert Hansen, that while the company may or may not be in the right, the place to settle the dispute is not in the state courts. The federal government, he said in overturning an injunction from an Oneida County Circuit Court, has a right which "pre-empts" state action.

Create Numbers Game With Cancelled Postage Stamps

BY CAPPY DICK

The object of today's game which is played with cancelled stamps is to see who will be first to accumulate a total of 100 points according to the money value on the stamps.

Collect a good supply of U.S. stamps that have been cancelled. Include some 10 cent stamps, 20 centers, six centers, four centers, three centers, 30 centers, 2 centers and one center. Any other denominations you choose may be included.

Cancelled stamps can be removed from old envelopes by soaking them in water. Paste each stamp on a small square of construction paper. To start the game, place all the stamps face down on a table. Each player gets a turn to draw a stamp and place it face up in front of him. The drawing continues until the money value of the stamps one player has drawn totals exactly 100. He becomes the winner. If a player accumulates 99 points he can't go out of the game and become the winner unless he draws a one-cent stamp to make his total exactly 100.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Emmy Awards Show Features Ironic Twist

Honors Well Deserved, but Most Go to Actors, Programs Dropped or Switched

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The annual Emmy Awards show, honoring television's best of the year, went off Sunday night without many perceptible hitches and with most of the statuette winding up in deserving hands.

Most interesting and ironic notes of the evening came when awards were presented to programs and performers which had been canceled.

Carl Betz received his Emmy as best actor in a dramatic series for ABC's "Judd for the Defense," dropped after two seasons. "Get Smart" was named again as the best comedy series and Don Adams as the best actor in a comedy. The show was dropped by NBC and picked up by CBS. Hope Lange, best actress in a comedy series, appeared in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," which was dropped by NBC and picked up by ABC. "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" was canceled by CBS but its writers won awards. And Barbara Bain, who is not working now with CBS's "Mission: Impossible," received an Emmy as best actress in a drama series—and in her acceptance speech did not try to hide her bitter feelings about "a coupling of people" connected with the show.

The program ran about 30 minutes beyond its scheduled 90 minutes. Bill Cosby in the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium and Merv Griffin in New York's Carnegie Hall were authoritative masters of ceremonies and never got their signals crossed. Loudest applause of the evening—plus a standing ovation—was given the three astronauts of Apollo 10 for their television pictures from close to the moon. They received awards for themselves and others on Apollo missions.

"Teacher Teacher" NBC's "Teacher, Teacher" was named the best dramatic program and Billy Schulman, the retarded boy who portrayed one so vividly in the play, received a special plaque. Geraldine Page won the best actress award for ABC's "The Thanks-giving Visitor." Paul Scofield and Anna Calder-Marshall were honored for their performances in NBC's "The Male of the Species." J. P. Miller, who wrote "The People Next Door" for CBS, and the show's director received Emmys. The educational network's "Net Playhouse" received the statuette for the best drama series.

It was generally a lean year for television drama, but the programs and the actors rewarded certainly represented the cream of the crop.

"Laugh-In" Logical "Laugh-In" on NBC logically was chosen as the best variety series. It is TV's latest programming innovation and has affected the form and pace of other programs. While the Emmy show went along briskly, the basic problems remain: There are far too many categories and often too many people are milling around on the stage. Efforts to cut down this season by making some announcements of winners in advance helped the pace of the show, but, for the home viewer, it diminished the importance of the awards in the news categories.

The thank-you speeches were kept under pretty good control and in the total, the program was a thousand-fold improvement over last season's disaster.

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — The Avengers is so old it has Diana Rigg back as Emma Peel. She and Steed are trying to prove a case of industrial sniping with ceramic industry executives being victimized. (R)

6:30-7 Channels 5 — Barbara Eden fans are given short shrift on I Dream of Jeannie. The lovely lady is ordered from the house when Tony and Roger are assigned a compatibility test. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Marshal Dillon has his hands full on Gunsmoke with the rather simple task of escorting a prisoner back to Dodge City. Naturally, the convict has a group of friends who are plotting his escape, and Dillon knows it. (R)

7:30-8 Channels 11-9 — The Guns of Will Sonnett does well with one of the oldest of western chestnuts. It's the one about father and son forced to draw on each other. In this, Will and Jeff separate to infiltrate a bandit gang's lair and get information on James. (R)

8-9 Channels 11-9 — Young Michael Margotta steals the show on The Outcasts. He plays a young man who views the bounty hunters as idols when the pair are hired by his father, a rancher being plagued by a range war. (R)

9-10 Channels 11-9 — The star of The Dick Cavett Show does the Milton Berle thing tonight, getting into the act. He plays a comedy scene with guest Bea Lillie titled "Milady Dines Alone." A second guest is Peter Fonda, discussing his newest film, "The Easy Rider." Criminal lawyer Percy Foreman discusses his more spectacular cases, including his defense of James Earl Ray, convicted slayer of Martin Luther King.

9-10 Channels 2-7 — The Carol Burnett Show is another example of TV oddities. This is a rerun, first shown last October. But the CBS moguls figured they should use it to promote its summer replacement, so they taped Jimmie Rodgers as Carol's special guest, singing "Today" and plugging his series. (R)

Actress Barbara Bain of "Mission Impossible" and actor Carl Betz, "Judd for the Defense," pose as best actress and actor in leading roles in a dramatic series at Civic Auditorium in Santa Monica, Calif. The unusual part of the television awards night was that Emmys went to many in shows which have been cancelled or switched. Miss Bain no longer is with "Mission Impossible" because of cast problems and "Judd" was dropped after two successful seasons. (AP Wirephoto)

Glad You Asked That!

BY HY-GARDNER

Q: Which hymns were played by the Army band at Gen. Eisenhower's Abilene funeral? Also, what's the name of the composition set to the old tune of "Aura Lea"?
— P. G. H. Turin, Iowa.

A: The hymns chosen were the favorites of the late President. "God of Our Fathers," "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Lead Kindly Light," "A Mighty Fortress is Our God" and the "Old Rugged Cross." The musical selection to the tune of "Aura Lea" was "Army Blue," played as each West Point graduating class steps out of the ranks for the final time as cadets.

Q: Why, at 41, doesn't Eddie Fisher grow up? He married three of the most desirable females in the world — then divorced them. If he keeps that up, where does he think he's going?
— E. V. Conklin, Baltimore, Md.

A: I don't know where he's going — but look where he's been!

Q: Mr. and Mrs. Bing Crosby recently made a large donation to the Immaculate Heart College in Hollywood. How large was it?
— George Durst, Jamaica, N. Y.

A: EXACTLY One Million Dollars!

Q: Is it true that That Girl, Marlo Thomas, has her parents worried because she's going steady with a studio stagehand?
— Bridget T., Palm Springs, Cal.

A: Make Room for Daddy and let him answer that question: "I think you can safely say, 'That Danny Thomas sighs, 'that'

Q: Wasn't General de Gaulle once sentenced to death? If so, why and by whom?

A: Yes. During WWII by Marshal Petain, pussy-footing head of the puppet Vichy Government. For refusing to collaborate during the Nazi occupation of France.

Q: What put George Jessel into the hospital? I heard it was a fight about a 19-year old chorus girl.
— Candy Leigh, St. Paul, Minn.

A: Georgie wishes that was the reason. What happened was that after receiving a medal from the U. S. O. for services rendered in Vietnam, he saluted a general too hard. Clicked his heels, fell and broke his hip.

Q: Does General Omar Bradley wish he could eat his words now? In November, 1967 he wrote in Look Magazine: "After tramping throughout the length and width of South Vietnam... I am convinced this is a war at the right place, at the right time and with the right enemy."
— Bryce Kendle, Providence, R. I.

A: Our only living five-star general, acknowledging your question, reaffirms the statement. Says his conviction remains steady and adds: "From the standpoint of my military judgment the stability of Southeast Asia, and for that matter all free world countries in the Pacific area, is vital to the security interests of the United States."

Q: What happened to dynamite Jim Morrison and where since the warrant for his arrest was issued? Are they coming out with a new record soon?

— Karlene Tiesbinger and Jennifer Stour, Jersey City, N. J.

A: Yes. The new record will probably have Morrison's fingerprints on it!

Q: Who was it who said "Everybody wants to live longer, but nobody wants to grow old?"
— Zeke Barnes, Memphis, Tenn.

A: A French biologist named Jules Rostand.

Q: Tommy Steele, the brilliant English actor, seemed to achieve his success overnight. Did he have any previous experience before he got famous waxing a gold record?
— Don Smith, Cleveland

A: Tommy's previous experience was working as an engine wiper on a Cunard liner, at the age of 17. He got fired because he took the crew's mind off their work strumming his "geetar" and singing between runs. Two years later, for performing a similar routine on records, he became one of the youngest millionaires in England.
